City manager opponents accused of deliberately falsifying information

The group seeking to end the city manager form of government in Sikeston was accused of deliberately misstating the facts during a news conference conducted by supporters this morning at Security Federal Savings & Loan Association.

Daniel S. Norton, local chairman of Citizens Concerned about Sikeston, made the accusations. As an example, he cited an incident during last week's debate about the issue in which a representative of the opposition group—Citizens for Democratic Government—held up a copy of the city budget, saying it showed the city manager was paid $41,000 per year in salary.

The only figure concerning the city manager's salary shows he was paid $35,000, Norton said.

"When you have available that information and then release misinformation, you're not being a responsible citizen," Norton said.

Norton and City Manager Charles Church held the last-minute press conference to comment on information released by the opposition prior to Tuesday's special election in which Sikeston voters will decide whether or not to keep the city manager system.

Norton did most of the talking, with Church injecting an occasional comment.

Norton said other misinformation has been released, then commented piece by piece on several instances he listed as examples.

He said the opposition has criticized the present form of government on the grounds that Sikeston has grown less than 1,000 people since 1960. He remarked that the city's population in the last 16 years has increased by about 3,500 persons, but that no concrete figures are available.

The opposition has criticized the present system because the budget has increased under it, but Norton said this is due to inflation and growth of the town, not because of the system of government.

He said Sikeston provides more and better services to its citizens and that it also provides services to people who live outside the community.

"We all know Sikeston is kind of a medical-legal center for a 25-35 mile radius," he said, then added that the city has increased in area by a third since 1960, a fact he charges that the opposition plays down.

Norton said those opposed to the present system have released figures showing that it costs $370 per year for every man, woman and child for the present system, but that it is really only $87 per year per person.

"They missed a decimal point," Church commented.

Norton compared the $87 figure with several other towns comparable in size to Sikeston and concluded the cost per citizen here is "not only lower, but is far lower" than many

Local chamber representatives welcome foreign businessmen

LAKE OF THE OZARKS -- Representatives of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce were among state business leaders on hand at Tan-Tara Lodge to welcome a tour of foreign business executives visiting Missouri last week to investigate investment and trade opportunities in the state.

The Sikeston Chamber was one of 16 from throughout Missouri participating in the meeting. The foreign business executives represented 10 nations.

The group was welcomed to Missouri by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who briefly introduced the state to the foreign visitors and then met personally with each executive. The tour also heard formal presentations from two overseas firms operating manufacturing and distribution facilities in Missouri, Dick Norton of F-A-G Bearings, a German company with operations in Joplin, and Marshall Miller of Arabia, Inc., a finland-owned company in

Lehr resignation adds new political shocker

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr's resignation announcement adds another in a series of shocks and surprises to what must be the most unusual political year in Missouri history.

It could mean that when Missouri voters decide on their next governor at the Nov. 2 general election, they'll also be choosing the man who'll name their next auditor, or it could mean the voters will actually be deciding on candidates for auditor.

While Lehr said the timing of his resignation announcement depends on an attorney general's opinion on how he's to be succeeded in office, staffers in the secretary of state's office were researching election laws Saturday.

One section of state law—that applying directly to the auditor's office—provides that when a vacancy occurs the governor shall immediately appoint an auditor to fill out the rest of the term in which the vacancy occurred.

But another broader statute, which covers all statewide offices except lieutenant governor, says appointees to such offices shall continue in office until the first Monday in January following the ensuing general election, with the two years remaining in the term to be filled by a person elected at the general election.

While most statewide offices are filled at the same time as a presidential election, since 1950 the auditor has been chosen for four-year terms during off years.

Lehr wants those contradictions in the law cleared up by the attorney general's opinion, before he'll make effective his resignation. He said that if the opinion finds that a governor must choose his successor, he will wait until after Missourians choose between Gov. Christopher S. Bond and his Democratic challenger Joseph P. Teasdale.

If the attorney general finds that Lehr's immediate resignation would require a vote Nov. 2 to fill that office, the Republican and Democratic state committees would have to meet to choose a state auditor candidate to run for Lehr's unexpired term.

Under state law, the committees would have to come up with their candidates Oct. 3, 30 days before the general election.

John McIlroy, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said he would be "extremely anxious that the office be filled by the electorate as opposed to it being filled by the governor."

He said that since a Democrat now holds the office, the party should be given a chance to elect another Democrat to it rather than having a Republican appointed by Bond.

"If it was definitely established that the state committee had the duty of selecting some candidate to be on the ballot, the sooner we did that the better off we would be," McIlroy said. He noted that the committee would have only about two weeks to choose a candidate and that it takes seven days notice to call a committee meeting.

Lowell McCuskey, chairman of the Republican State Committee, was unavailable for comment on the auditor question.

Bond has experience in appointing auditors. When he resigned the auditor's office to become governor in 1973, he wppointed John Ashcroft as his successor to fill the unexpired two years of Bond's term. But that appointment was made after the 1972 general election in which Bond was elected governor.

A spokesman for Bond said Saturday that the governor was campaigning over the weekend and would be considering the auditor situation on Monday.

At the time Bond selected Ashcroft in 1972, the names of Springfield attorney Dee Wampler and insurance executive Jerry Lumpe were being mentioned as possible auditor selections.

The Democratic State Committee has already had to choose one candidate for the general election. It selected Warren E. Hearnes as its U.S. Senate nominee after Congressman Jerry Litton, who won the primary, was killed in an election night plane crash.

That accident and the surprising upset by Teasdale over state Sen. William Cason, combine with Lehr's announcement to make this the most bizarre year in Missouri Democratic politics.

Lehr indicated in a broadcast interview last month that he was becoming less interested in the auditor's office. A spokesman for his office, Don Keough, said Lehr had been discouraged by the results from the Aug. 3 primary election "because he saw a lot of money being spent."

That was a reference to Litton, who spent more than $1 million in his Senate campaign.

Earlier this year, Lehr toyed with the idea of running for the chance to face Bond in the governor's race, but instead sat on the sidelines while Teasdale entered the contest and took the nomination from Cason.

"I'll be very satisfied to sit here. I love the job," Lehr had said in January.

Arkansas youth drowns northeast of Lilbourn

LILBOURN — A 17-year-old Russellville, Ark., youth drowned Sunday afternoon in a body of water two miles northeast of town known locally as the Washout.

The body of Freddie Allen Heart was recovered at 3:50 p.m. about an hour after a search was started by the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department and volunteers.

Heart had moved a week ago to the home of an uncle, Troy Heart of Route Two, and was scheduled to begin work today at the Inland Shoe Manufacturing Co. factory in Parma, according to New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton.

Clayton said Heart had arrived at the Washout shortly after 2 p.m. with two older women, Ruby Jones and Dorothy Middleton, who are friends of the Troy Heart family.

The women told Clayton that when they arrived at the Washout Heart immediately jumped out of the car, ran to the water and jumped in. As the women were walking toward the water, they said Heart was turning flip flops in the water a short distance from the bank.

According to the women, they yelled to Heart and asked if he could swim but he did not answer them.

The women said they saw Heart go under the water, then come up go back under a second time. When he resurfaced the second time, they said he had one hand sticking up, then submerged a third time and failed to come up.

Clayton estimated the water was about 12 feet deep where the body was retrieved by New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Ronnie Adams, Troy Riley of New Madrid and Jim Carpenter of Lilbourn.

The body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid.

Youth held in delinquency case

NEW MADRID — An 18-year-old rural Sikeston youth was arrested at 1 a.m. today on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old Morehouse girl and for possible child molestation, according to the New Madrid County Sherrif's Department.

Following a complaint by the girl's parents, the boy was arrested on Highway 60 between Morehouse and Sikeston by a highway patrol officer.

The girl, who was in the car with the boy at the time of his arrest, had been drinking. She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for a physical examination to determine whether she had been sexually molested.

The suspect's name was withheld, pending charges.

Stealing charge to be filed

NEW MADRID — A felonious stealing charge will be filed today in New Madrid County Magistrate Court against two Morehouse men, Terrence Greer, 20, and Trennis Lee Abernathy, 19.

Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo said the men are accused of stealing a television set sometime Thursday night from the home of William Crady in Morehouse.

The television set was recovered from a house in Gray Ridge, and the men were arrested Friday by Wingo and Morehouse Marshal L.M. "Slim" Rogers.

MASW to meet here

Former State Sen. J.H. "Pat" Patterson of Caruthersville will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Southeast Division of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East.

Topic of the program will be "The Why and How of Lawmaking". Carl E. Morris of Caruthersville, chairman of the Southeast Division of MASW, will make the welcoming address and introduce board members.

New officers and board members will be elected.

Auto supply burglarized

CHARLESTON — A burglary Sunday night at B&H Auto Supply on East Marshall Street is under investigation by the police department.

The building was entered by kicking a panel out of a rear door. Inventory is being made to determine the loss.

Cotton Top contest set for Wednesday

The first competitive event of the 32nd annual American Legion Cotton Carnival will be the Cotton Top King and Queen contests at 7 p.m. Wednesday on the cotton carnival stage on N. New Madrid St.

Contestants must be between 4 and 6 years old and must have blonde hair according to Tom Marshall, contest chairman.

State Rep. C.F. Cline, will crown the winners, who will also receive trophies.

Marshall said entries have been received from 18 girls and boys from all the southeast Missouri area. No entries will be accepted after Tuesday.

Contestants should be behind the stage no later than 6:45 p.m. Wednesday, Marshall said.

Advance man jailed

BENTON — James Andrews, 22, of Advance, was arrested in St. Louis County Friday night and is now being held in Scott County Jail, after being returned by Scott County Deputy Roger Bartolo.

Andrews is charged with auto theft and two counts of burglary and stealing.

He is charged with the theft of a pickup truck from Charles W. Taylor of Oran on Thursday.

The two burglary and stealing charges stem from burglaries Thursday morning of Gilley's Service Station in Morley in which about $20 was taken and the break-in of the Delta Drive-In concession stand on Highway 61 the same day in which some cigarettes were taken.

Bond has not been set.

Scott County Deputy David Richbourg said a report was received at 7:05 a.m. today of a break-in of Gilley's Service Station in Morley sometime Sunday night.

Richbourg said entry was gained by pushing out a window of the front door on the east end of the building and that about $30 was taken from a cash register and soft drink machine.

Tools and fencing stolen

A box of tools, a chain saw and fencing were reported stolen Saturday, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Vester Ross, 712 E. Kathleen Ave., reported the theft of a tool box and tools valued at $200 and a chain saw valued at $138 Saturday evening.

The items were in a locked tool chest in Ross's truck. The tool chest had been pried open, officials said. The truck was parked at the rear of the Piggly Wiggly Store, 207 W. Malone Ave., at the time the theft occurred.

The theft of 150 feet of chainlink fence, valued at $150, occurred early Saturday morning, according to the owner, J.W. Staggs, 427 Pam St. The fence was in a truck parked outside Staggs's residence and Staggs said the cab of the truck was locked.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We can't imagine anything worse than to be a woman and have to wonder three times a day what to get for the next meal.

XXX

Dempster vs. City of Sikeston. Why this man is an "againster" we don't know, but when people get together and try to peddle a different government system to our progressive city it is time to become concerned.

Dempster wants to cut costs, starting with reducing the number of policemen and getting a cheaper administrator for the city.

Our police force needs funds for more training so they can become better trained. They don't need their personnel reduced, causing fewer policemen to try to perform the same services. This would mean less protection for our children and property.

Dempster says the city manager's salary is too high. If you make less than the city manager, sure his salary is high, but compared to what? Lets face human nature, we all want what we're going to buy cheaper than it is marked. The cheaper the item, the cheaper the quality and when it comes to managing our town we don't want any "Bargain Bobs". We want a professional, a man well-trained and experienced in this field.

Don't be fooled into believing that the mayor-alderman form of government will do anything for Sikeston but cause our town to go backward. Under the mayor-alderman system the mayor would have to appoint an administrator to help run the city. The mayor would probably be a businessman with other responsibilities than running the city part-time. The mayor, not the people or aldermen, would have the authority to appoint an administrator. If he is a professional, he will command a salary higher than someone untrained and unexperienced. Don't be fooled into believing that the mayor-alderman form of government is anything but a more- political form of government involving more politicians and fewer people.

The mayor, police chief, collector, city judge and aldermen are elected by the vote of the people. The bad thing about this is that sometimes the voters don't have qualified people to vote oh, and if the elected officials so desire, they can run their departments their own way without cooperating with other departments.

The City Council form of government, which we operate under now, is managed by a professional who appoints the collector, police chief (now safety director) and city judge. The mayor is elected by members of the City Council. To us citizens, this means that the different offices within the city are answerable to the city manager who is appointed by and answerable to the City Council and can be replaced at anytime by the City Council.

The City Council is elected at large from our city, giving our voters a choice from the entire city and eliminating the possibility of fighting and bickering back and forth between different alderman and their separate wards.

Don't be fooled into voting out the best form of government the city of Sikeston has ever had. Vote for the city manager form of government Tuesday.

JUST ONE VOTE

Look around among your friends and fellow employes.

Are they of average intelligence? Over 18? U.S. citizens? Eligible to vote?

Sure.

Now look at them again. In the average group of men and women, chances are good that every third person will not vote in the upcoming primary and in the November presidential elections.

Why will more than one-third of our eligible citizens forfeit their right to vote this year?

It's because they don't believe that their one vote counts for much in the election--or in the political process.

But the fact is that right up until Election Day, you and every other eligible voter in the country will be the target of an intensive election campaign.

The candidates for President will stump the country; state office seekers will crisscross the state; local candidates will canvass every precinct; party workers will ring your doorbell.

Why all this fuss and furor over your one vote? Because the candidates believe, even if you do not, that your one vote is mighty important. More than that, they know it is.

Here's examples of the power of just one vote:

Perhaps the best one of all is New Hampshire's senatorial race in 1974, in which Republican Louis Wyman appeared to have defeated Democrat John Durkin by 542 votes. A recount put Durkin ahead by 10 votes, but the state ballot law commission found certain ballots to be invalid and declared Wyman the winner by two votes. The result was appealed to the U.S. Senate, which spent months in a fruitless effort to resolve the deadlock. Finally, the election had to be held again, and the candidate who looked like the loser the first time around won a stunning victory.

In 1948, President Truman won Ohio by 7,107 votes, California by 17,865. If one Truman voter in each precinct in those states had stayed away from the polls, Governor Dewey would have caputred 50 more electoral votes, President Truman would have lost 50, and the election would have been thrown into the House of Representatives.

In 1960, John F. Kennedy's national plurality was less than one vote per precinct. He defeated Richard Nixon by less than 120,000 votes out of almost 69 million votes cast.

Why do people throw away their right to vote? In 1974, the U.S. Bureau of the Census reports that nearly 29 million people of voting age failed to vote for reasons like these: They were not interested in the elections, they just didn't get around to voting, they dislike politics in general, they did not care for any of the candidates, or they thought their vote would not matter anyway.

Yet we know that when people throw away their right to vote, they are putting out the welcome mat for bad government and perhaps worse. As one political writer puts it:

"How much time is your government worth to you? It costs you a fair chunk of your income. It may cost you your life--it can draft you and send you off to die in a war; it can fail to protect you against murderers...it can destroy your job and let you starve."

Unless the right to vote in free elections is maintained and exercised, the risks to our entire democratic system are great. When most citizens fail to exercise their right to vote, they open the way for the election of extremists by small but vocal and active minorities, and then all rights are in jeopardy. Trial by jury, the right of habeas corpus, protection from unreasonable search and seizure, a free press, free speech, freedom of religious worship, the right of assembly, freedom to choose one's occupation and residence--these and other rights can only be protected by full voter participation at every level of government.

If you want to demonstrate your faith in our form of government--and keep it alive, healthy, and working--you can do so with just one vote: YOUR VOTE ON ELECTION DAY.

PEOPLE ARE LIKE THAT

It was my first interview for a job. I didn't get much sleep the night before. I arrived for the interview an hour early the next morning, and was first in the line which began forming behind the massive double doors. By 9:00, when the doors were pushed open, there were 22 applicants behind me.

Suddenly I found myself wedged behind one of the doors. The others quickly pushed past me. Now I was last in line. Tired, worried, and hungry (I had skipped breakfast), I just stood there and cried.

Just as I was about to give up and go home, a well-dressed man spied me. Smiling, he urged me out of the corner and led me to a chair. He listened to my woes as if he had all the time in the world. Then he told me to remain seated, and disappeared into one of the offices.

Soon, a lady handed me a note and told me to give it to the personnel manager. The interview went well. I took dictation and transcribed the letter without any errors. Three days later I was informed by phone that I had been selected for the job.

The man who rescued me from behind the door was, I learned later, a vice president of the company. His compassion, understanding, and kindness had helped me begin a career. I will always remember him.

DO YOU CALL THIS LIVING?

Women may feel "unequal" in other ways, but they certainly have no kick coming in the life expectancy department.

Today's woman of 45 can look forward to another 33.9 years of life, says the Institute of Life Insurance. This is a new high.

Far more dramatic is the change since the century began. In 1900, a baby girl could expect to live to age 48, while a baby boy had a life expectancy of 46 years.

The difference has widened since then to almost eight years, still in favor of women. A female born in 1974 had a life expectancy of 75.9 years, as contrasted with 68.2 years for males.

Much has been said about the roles played by men and women being responsible for the difference in life expectancy. The argument goes that a housewife's job is not pressure-packed or strenuous.

One of the women here at the Daily Standard disagreed with that argument, though. In fact, she even disputed the figures showing that women live longer than men.

"When you're responsible for taking care of children," she sighed, "it just seems like you're living longer than your husband."—The (Excelsior Springs) Daily Standard

EMPLOYMENT'S CATCH 22
From The New York Times
Alex Wasilewski, a policeman who has been suspended from the East Hampton, Long Island, police department, is threatened with losing his job because he falsely denied in his application that he had ever suffered from any mental illness. He had, in fact, seen psychiatrists on one occasion and had received a National Guard discharge with medical disability. But it also evident that Mr. Wasilewski would never have been hired if he had admitted any past psychiatric care.

The obstacle confronted by all those who have ever had emotional difficulties is summed up by East Hampton Police Chief John Henry Doyle's statement, "You can't let a guy go around with a gun if he's crazy." Needless to say there is no evidence Mr. Wasilewski is "crazy."

The case underscores the widespread prejudice and job discrimination against people who have had emotional problems, even after they have overcome them. To acknowledge having consulted a psychiatrist or—even worse—ever having been treated in a mental institution to risk making oneself permanently unemployable in a wide variety of occupations, by no means confined to those that require handling firearms.

Such discrimination affects most cruelly persons who have suffered emotional problems, but it is also frequently practiced against individuals who have recovered from physical illness. The American Cancer Society, for example, has repeatedly complained about difficulties experienced by recovered cancer victims as job applicants. The result is that millions of Americans have learned to lie—to deny that they have been victims of emotional or physical illness. And by misstating the facts, they risk discharge on the grounds of falsification—a classic case of Catch 22.

A fair solution calls for simple logic: An individual should be hired on the basis of his or her capacity to do the required job, taking into consideration the applicant's present mental and physical condition. Any other policy perpetuates senseless discrimination against millions of Americans who must question whether their recovery from past illness was really worthwhile.

OUR CODDLED LEGISLATORS

We have all heard of the handsome salaries and royal perquisites enjoyed by our Representatives and Senators in Congress. Some state legislators do not have it so bad either.

The California Taxpayers' Association reports that members of their state legislature defeated for office will, under present law, receive a lifetime income from the state, regardless of whether they were anywhere near retirement age. Some ex-legislators in their 30's who lost out on their bids for public office could receive as much as a million dollars from the state by the time they reach retirement age of 60. So far, legislators in California are reluctant to reduce or eliminate their lucrative retirement benefits. If we are going to fight inflation, a good place to start might be to persuade our elected representatives to join that insecure old world that the rest of us have to live in.

LETTER FROM PARIS

PARIS -- There is not too much happening in France at the moment. The biggest controversy seems to be that a French bishop insists on saying the Catholic Mass in Latin instead of French, and the Pope is very mad at him. The country is now divided on the issue with the Gaullists supporting the bishop, the Independent Socialists the Pope, and the Communists demanding a television debate before they decide how to vote.

The American tourist, long the symbol of U.S. imperialism in France, has virtually disappeared and has been replaced in all the first-class hotels by large families of Arab sheiks, their wives and children. The lobby of the Hotel George V is now full of little Saudi Arabian princes and princesses playing soccer between the chairs while their parents are out trying to figure out how to spend millions of dollars' worth of oil royalties in Paris shops. The employees of the hotel have strict orders not to remonstrate the children for anything they do because an average Arab kid in a Paris hotel spends $100 a day ordering from room service.

There has been a drought in northern France, and this has given the French merchants an excuse to raise their prices not only on food products in the drought zone, but on other things that ordinarily woul not be affected by water.

A handbag I priced on the Faubourg St. Honore cost $450. The lady in the store explained to me it was ."because of the drought."

A man's shirt in a window near the Place de l'Opera had been marked up from $40 to $50 "because of the drought."

Even a Louis V table in an antique shop had increased by $8,000 because of the dry weather in Normandy. The antique merchant explained that because of the lack of water the dealers had to slaughter all their Louis V tables, since they couldn't afford to feed them any more.

The big question I was constantly asked in Paris by the French was, "What do the Americans think of Giscard d'Estaing and France?"

I had to be honest and explain that Giscard was probably as well known in the United States as Richard Schweiker, and the last time France was mentioned in the United States was when some Croatians hijacked an airplane flying from New York to Chicago.

"But it isn't our fault," I explained to my French friends. "Most Americans are only interested in the countries Henry Kissinger is interested in. At the moment Henry has decided he prefers Africa to France, and we have to go along with him."

"Why?" a Frenchman asked me.

"Because Henry knows best," I replied. "The national intersts of the United States are inexorably tied to Namibia, Rhodesia and South Africa. It came as a surprise to most of us, but if Henry says, 'That's where it's happening,' we have no choice but put our prestige and money on the line. Henry doesn't fly around the world for nothing."

My French friend said, "He's making a big mistake getting into that stew."

"Ordinarily I would agree with you, but as an American I cannot question Henry's reasons for taking such a big interest in southern Africa. Besides, he may have something going for him in Capetown that none of us knows about."

My French friend said, "Do you think Kissinger will stay on if Ford is elected President?"

"He'll have to," I said. "He can't quit until Namibia is a free nation."

"Where is Namibia?"

"If we Americans knew," I replied testily, "do you think we'd tell you?"

Hitting More Bricks:

Auto Union charges GM stonewalling it in South; plans to strike it after Ford

WASHINGTON— It would cost Leonard Woodcock's massive United Auto Workers union some $80 million a month to strike the huge General Motors Corp. Probably more. Yet his International Executive Board colleagues are saying that, though there's a Ford stoppage in their future for a possible 10 weeks, "GM is next unless we get a 'mutual respect clause' in the new pact."

They're as serious as they were in 1970. Then they hit the bricks and paid out some $14 million a week in relief and about $23 million a month in health and life insurance for some 404,000 strike-idled workers and their families.

At first all this mutual trust talk sounded as though the militant veterans of the UAW leadership were saying what comes naturally from men who actually led the Michigan sit-downs of the late '30s and who signed their first contracts with the Big Three car manufacturers in the '40s.

But it soon becomes as clear (but not yet as loud) as mass picket lines that they're in earnest. These UAW leaders are the same men who warned privately weeks ago they'd strike the Ford Motor Co. if they couldn't peacefully, successfully "pioneer" by crashing through on the shorter work week, month and year. This is the linchpin of their demands, they still say. They've sent the message past the company's spokesman, Sid McKenna, straight to Henry Ford and the top executive management team.

Now the 168,000 Ford workers are on the bricks for an indefinite stay. And, the union's strategists, including the UAW's Ford strike leader Ken Bannon, privately say they'll stay out 10 weeks (as they did in 1967) or longer, if necessary, to get over "the threshold."

The company is holding out for various reasons. The cost of the UAW's newest "pioneering" in the mass production field is still too prickly a matter even for Ford's ultra-sophisticated computers. And note that, while it cost the industry some $10 million a year for every additional penny increase per hour granted after the last strike, this has jumped to $14 million.

Buried in all this negotiating passion and intricacies of today's huge collective bargaining contracts, is another, virtually unreported, issue: the auto union has submitted a "neutrality" clause to all the auto companies -- Ford as well as the other big two and American Motors.

Essentially the clause is aimed at General Motors, which the UAW is accusing of "union-smashing in the South." Basically the clause says: "We respect your company's right to prosper and grow without our interference and we want you, in writing, in the national agreement, to guarantee that you will respect our right to grow, too."

There are reports that the Ford company's executive suite is resisting this clause. But I'm told by authoritative sources on both sides that Ford will accept it after a bit of push-and-shove.

Once this "respect" clause is in the eventual Ford agreement, the whole package will be put on the "main table" at GM. This will become the linchpin of the GM negotiations, just as shorter work time is at strike-bound Ford today.

This union strategy is aimed at what the UAW denoucnes as GM's "Southern union-smashing strategy." Woodcock and the traditionally silent (but very active) Pat Greathouse, the UAW's department of organization chief, charge this is a methodical program by GM to shift its facilities slowly into the sunbelt and fight off the UAW membership drives which follow close on.

Could this demand for a mutual respect clause cause a mammoth strike such as the one in 1970 which forced the union to hock its national headquarters to the Teamsters for $25 million?

"This is a tinderbox situation," says one of the UAW's policymakers. "Believe me it's a very sensitive area. We won't tolerate this GM position. It could very well be the key strike issue."

I believe him. He predicted the pivotal Ford strike issue would be the shorter work year. But why this fierce intensity over mutual respect or Gm neutrality during UAW unionization drives? Why is the union actually demanding that GM "cool off" or "fire" its plant managers in Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana and Alabama?

Because none of the seven GM parts plants built in the South in recent years have been unionized. The UAW has tried and failed.

Woodcock, Greathouse and UAW-GM department leader Irv Bluestone say that Southern GM plant managers have been using tough radio, leaflet, movie and in-plant anti-union propaganda and speeches. A GM official countercharges all this is union nonsense and says the company has the right to free speech in and out of its plants. The union wants the mutual respect clause to end GM's managers' opposition to Southern unionization.

And the labor leaders warn that whatever the cost they'll strike on this one when the Ford ciris is over.

There would be traumatic national repercussions -- probably worldwide. Sounds like a hot winter.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. Site for PLO Fund-Raising

by Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Palestine Liberation Organization is raising funds in the United States for its guerrilla activities. On at least one occasion, money has been routed through the PLO's Permanent Observer post at the United Nations.

The funds collected from PLO sympathizers in this country have been deposited in a PLO account overseas. The account is used to finance PLO operations, presumably including terrorist raids and airplane hijackings.

Through several intermediaries, we have obtained proof of the clandestine PLO collections in the United States. It consists of a thank-you note, written in Arabic on the stationery of the PLO's United Nations office. The letter is signed by Jacob El-Oubedi, the PLO's top fund-raisier in Beirut, and is addressed to the "Palestinian Committee in the State of Virginia."

It relates how the Virginians had collected $4,084, which El-Oubedi said would go into the "PLO national chest." El-Oubedi's code name, by the way, is "Abu Khaled."

"We hope you will continue to work for our holy cause and a revolutionary victory," wrote El-Oubedi. He noted that the Virginian's money had been turned over to him by the PLO director in New York, Zoher Tarazi.

Tarazi acknowledged that El-Oubedi had been in the United States and that a fund-raising effort is going on. But he insisted forcefully: "They are not using this channel" for collecting funds.

We pointed out that El-Oubedi's letter was written on the PLO's United Nations stationery. Tarazi then recalled that the Virginians had delivered the $4,084 check to him, and that he had forwarded it to El-Oubedi. "We were just a pigeon drop," he said.

Although Tarazi admitted the fund drive reached into many states, he said money for the PLO was scarce. "When I think about the billions going to other places!!" he exclaimed. He alluded to the massive fund-raising efforts in behalf of Israel.

Footnote: The PLO is registered with the Justice Department as a foreign agent, but only for "information activities," not fund collecting. There is no registartion for El-Oubedi.

KISSINGER'S CREDIBILITY: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is held in such low esteem in Saudi Arabia that former American Ambassador James E. Akins wrote despairingly from Jidda: "I sometimes wonder how we can maintain any influence at all in this country, and I strongly suspect we're on a deep downward path here."

Akins confided his views in secret memos and letters, which we have obtained.

Kissinger's "credibility in Saudi Arabia," wrote the former ambassador, "is approximately the same as it is in the U.S. Senate."

In a secret "memorandum for the file," dated Aug. 28, 1975, he told of a private conversation with Saudi oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani. The powerful oil minister complained of the "'games' the U.S. is playing in the Middle East."

Kissinger's tactics "had long been discussed in Saudi Arabia," and the Saudis had concluded that the United States was "putting all (its) cards on Iran," Yamani told the ambassador.

"It was obvious," Yamani explained, "that the State Department had adopted a pro-Iran, anti-Arab line, and he wondered if President Ford would fall for it. He hoped not."

The Saudis had as high an opinion of Akins as they had a low opinion of Kissinger. Thus Akins' recent dismissal, he wrote, was viewed by the Saudis "as a move more against them than against me."

In a recent letter to Treasury Secretary William Simon, Akins reported: "The Saudis intended to take up my dismissal when Kissinger was here and make a major issue of it. I asked them, as a personal favor, not to do so."

But Kissinger misinterpreted their failure to react, according to Akins. "Kissinger has concluded that their non-reaction shows they got his 'message' and are frightened."

On the contrary, Akins related how the Saudis had been deriding Kissinger. Because the ambassador had tried to defend his boss, two top ministers, Zaki Yamani and Isham Nazer, "have been taunting me for the last week," he reported, "with my past staunch vigorous defense of Kissinger. Both of them claim they saw through him immediately and take great joy in quoting verbatim my defense of him and his policies."

Kissinger also had the mistaken idea, according to Akins' secret letter, that he had made a favorable impression upon the late King Faisal. The Saudis "find it hilariously funny," wrote Akins, "that Kissinger has claimed that it was he himself the King came to like and trust."

The Saudis liked to kid Akins about these matters. Related the former ambassador: "I give them as stony a 'no comment' as I can manage."

Footnote: We reached Akins in London. He confirmed that he had written secret letters and memos but refused to comment on them.

CON MAN: Last year, we reported that a cunning con man named Thomas R. Faernstrom had collected $80,000 by using other men's names to pick up reenlistment bonuses from the armed services. Then he would move on to "re-enlist" all over again.

The FBI finally caught up with him, and he is in prison. But Pentagon gumshoes now believe their $30,000 estimate was far too low. Faernstrom may have bilked the military of $600,000 in 10 years.

Dempster vs. City of Sikeston. Why this man is an "againster" we don't know, but when people get together and try to peddle a different government system to our progressive city it is time to become concerned.

Dempster wants to cut costs, starting with reducing the number of policemen and getting a cheaper administrator for the city.

Our police force needs funds for more training so they can become better trained. They don't need their personnel reduced, causing fewer policemen to try to perform the same services. This would mean less protection for our children and property.

Dempster says the city manager's salary is too high. If you make less than the city manager, sure his salary is high, but compared to what? Lets face human nature, we all want what we're going to buy cheaper than it is marked. The cheaper the item, the cheaper the quality and when it comes to managing our town we don't want any "Bargain Bobs". We want a professional, a man well-trained and experienced in this field.

Don't be fooled into believing that the mayor-alderman form of government will do anything for Sikeston but cause our town to go backward. Under the mayor-alderman system the mayor would have to appoint an administrator to help run the city. The mayor would probably be a businessman with other responsibilities than running the city part-time. The mayor, not the people or aldermen, would have the authority to appoint an administrator. The mayor, police chief, collector, city judge and aldermen are elected by the vote of the people. The bad thing about this is that sometimes the voters don't have qualified people to vote on, and if the elected officials so desire, they can run their departments their own way without cooperating with other departments.

The City Council form of government, which we operate under now, is managed by a professional who appoints the collector, police chief (now safety director) and city judge. The mayor is elected by members of the City Council. To us citizens, this means that the different offices within the city are answerable to the city manager who is appointed by and answerable to the City Council and can be replaced at anytime by the City Council.

The City Council is elected at large from our city, giving our voters a choice from the entire city and eliminating the possibility of fighting and bickering back and forth between different alderman and their separate wards.

Don't be fooled into voting out the best form of government the city of Sikeston has ever had. Vote for the city manager form of government Tuesday.

It was my first interview for a job. I didn't get much sleep the night before. I arrived for the interview an hour early the next morning, and was first in the line which began forming behind the massive double doors. By 9:00, when the doors were pushed open, there were 32 applicants behind me.

Suddenly I found myself wedged behind one of the doors. The others quickly pushed past me. Now I was last in line. Tired, worried, and hungry (I had skipped breakfast), I just stood there and cried.

Just as I was about to give up and go home, a well-dressed man spied me. Smiling, he urged me out of the corner and led me to a chair. He listened to my woes as if he had all the time in the world. Then he told me to remain seated, and disappeared into one of the offices.

Soon, a lady handed me a note and told me to give it to the personnel manager. The interview went well. I took dictation and transcribed the letter without any errors. Three days later I was informed by phone that I had been selected for the job.

The man who rescued me from behind the door was, I learned later, a vice president of the company. His compassion, understanding, and kindness had helped me begin a career. I will always remember him.

DO YOU CALL THIS LIVING?

Women may feel "unequal" in other ways, but they certainly have no kick coming in the life expectancy department.

Today's woman of 45 can look forward to another 33.9 years of life, says the Institute of Life Insurance. This is a new high.

Far more dramatic is the change since the century began. In 1900, a baby girl could expect to live to age 48, while a baby boy had a life expectancy of 46 years.

The difference has widened since then to almost eight years, still in favor of women. A female born in 1974 had a life expectancy of 75.9 years, as contrasted with 68.2 years for males.

Much has been said about the roles played by men and women being responsible for the difference in life expectancy. The argument goes that a housewife's job is not pressure-packed or strenuous.

One of the women here at the Daily Standard disagreed with that argument, though. In fact, she even disputed the figures showing that women live longer than men.

"When you're responsible for taking care of children," she sighed, "it just seems like you're living longer than your husband."—The (Excelsior Springs) Daily Standard

EMPLOYMENT'S CATCH 22

From The New York Times

Alex Wasilewski, a policeman who has been suspended from the East Hampton, Long Island, police department, is threatened with losing his job because he falsely denied in his application that he had ever suffered from any mental illness. He had, in fact, seen psychiatrists on one occasion and had received a National Guard discharge with medical disability. But it also evident that Mr. Wasilewski would never have been hired if he had admitted any past psychiatric care.

The obstacle confronted by all those who have ever had emotional difficulties is summed up by East Hampton Police Chief John Henry Doyle's statement, "You can't let a guy go around with a gun if he's crazy." Needless to say there is no evidence Mr. Wasilewski is "crazy."

The case underscores the widespread prejudice and job discrimination against people who have had emotional problems, even after they have overcome them. To acknowledge having consulted a psychiatrist or—even worse—ever having been treated in a mental institution to risk making oneself permanently unemployable in a wide variety of occupations, by no means confined to those that require handling firearms.

Such discrimination affects most cruelly persons who have suffered emotional problems, but it is also frequently practiced against individuals who have recovered from physical illness. The American Cancer Society, for example, has repeatedly complained about difficulties experienced by recovered cancer victims as job applicants. The result is that millions of Americans have learned to lie—to deny that they have been victims of emotional or physical illness. And by misstating the facts, they risk discharge on the grounds of falsification—a classic case of Catch 22.

A fair solution calls for simple logic: An individual should be hired on the basis of his or her capacity to do the required job, taking into consideration the applicant's present mental and physical condition. Any other policy perpetuates senseless discrimination against millions of Americans who must question whether their recovery from past illness was really worthwhile.

OUR CODDLED LEGISLATORS

We have all heard of the handsome salaries and royal perquisites enjoyed by our Representatives and Senators in Congress. Some state legislators do not have it so bad either.

The California Taxpayers' Association reports that members of their state legislature defeated for office will, under present law, receive a lifetime income from the state, regardless of whether they were anywhere near retirement age. Some ex-legislators in their 30's who lost out on their bids for public office could receive as much as a million dollars from the state by the time they reach retirement age of 60. So far, legislators in California are reluctant to reduce or eliminate their lucrative retirement benefits. If we are going to fight inflation, a good place to start might be to persuade our elected representatives to join that insecure old world that the rest of us have to live in.

Inside Labor

Hitting More Bricks:

Auto Union charges GM stonewalling it in South; plans to strike it after Ford

WASHINGTON— It would cost Leonard Woodcock's massive United Auto Workers union some $80 million a month to strike the huge General Motors Corp. Probably more. Yet his International Executive Board colleagues are saying that, though there's a Ford stoppage in their future for a possible 10 weeks, "GM is next unless we get a 'mutual respect clause' in the new pact."

They're as serious as they were in 1970. Then they hit the bricks and paid out some $14 million a week in relief and about $23 million a month in health and life insurance for some 404,000 strike-idled workers and their families.

At first all this mutual trust talk sounded as though the militant veterans of the UAW leadership were saying what comes naturally from men who actually led the Michigan sit-downs of the late '30s and who signed their first contracts with the Big Three car manufacturers in the '40s.

But it soon becomes as clear (but not yet as loud) as mass picket lines that they're in earnest. These UAW leaders are the same men who warned privately weeks ago they'd strike the Ford Motor Co. if they couldn't peacefully, successfully "pioneer" by crashing through on the shorter work week, month and year. This is the linchpin of their demands, they still say. They've sent the message past the company's spokesman, Sid McKenna, straight to Henry Ford and the top executive management team.

Now the 168,000 Ford workers are on the bricks for an indefinite stay. And, the union's strategists, including the UAW's Ford strike leader Ken Bannon, privately say they'll stay out 10 weeks (as they did in 1967) or longer, if necessary, to get over "the threshold."

The company is holding out for various reasons. The cost of the UAW's newest "pioneering" in the mass production field is still too prickly a matter even for Ford's ultra-sophisticated computers. And note that, while it cost the industry some $10 million a year for every additional penny increase per hour granted after the last strike, this has jumped to $14 million.

Buried in all this negotiating passion and intricacies of today's huge collective bargaining contracts, is another, virtually unreported, issue: the auto union has submitted a "neutrality" clause to all the auto companies – Ford as well as the other big two and American Motors.

Essentially the clause is aimed at General Motors, which the UAW is accusing of "union-smashing in the South." Basically the clause says: "We respect your company's right to prosper and grow without our interference and we want you, in writing, in the national agreement, to guarantee that you will respect our right to grow, too."

There are reports that the Ford company's executive suite is resisting this clause. But I'm told by authoritative sources on both sides that Ford will accept it after a bit of push-and-shove.

Once this "respect" clause is in the eventual Ford agreement, the whole package will be put on the "main table" at GM. This will become the linchpin of the GM negotiations, just as shorter work time is at strike-bound Ford today.

This union strategy is aimed at what the UAW denoucnes as GM's "Southern union-smashing strategy." Woodcock and the traditionally silent (but very active) Pat Greathouse, the UAW's department of organization chief, charge this is a methodical program by GM to shift its facilities slowly into the sunbelt and fight off the UAW membership drives which follow close on.

Could this demand for a mutual respect clause cause a mammoth strike such as the one in 1970 which forced the union to hock its national headquarters to the Teamsters for $25 million?

"This is a tinderbox situation," says one of the UAW's policymakers. "Believe me it's a very sensitive area. We won't tolerate this GM position. It could very well be the key strike issue."

I believe him. He predicted the pivotal Ford strike issue would be the shorter work year. But why this fierce intensity over mutual respect or Gm neutrality during UAW unionization drives? Why is the union actually demanding that GM "cool off" or "fire" its plant managers in Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana and Alabama?

Because none of the seven GM parts plants built in the South in recent years have been unionized. The UAW has tried and failed.

Woodcock, Greathouse and UAW-GM department leader Irv Bluestone say that Southern GM plant managers have been using tough radio, leaflet, movie and in-plant anti-union propaganda and speeches. A GM official countercharges all this is union nonsense and says the company has the right to free speech in and out of its plants. The union wants the mutual respect clause to end GM's managers' opposition to Southern unionization.

And the labor leaders warn that whatever the cost they'll strike on this one when the Ford ciris is over.

There would be traumatic national repercussions – probably worldwide. Sounds like a hot winter.

LETTER FROM PARIS

PARIS – There is not too much happening in France at the moment. The biggest controversy seems to be that a French bishop insists on saying the Catholic Mass in Latin instead of French, and the Pope is very mad at him. The country is now divided on the issue with the Gaullists supporting the bishop, the Independent Socialists the Pope, and the Communists demanding a television debate before they decide how to vote.

The American tourist, long the symbol of U.S. imperialism in France, has virtually disappeared and has been replaced in all the first-class hotels by large families of Arab sheiks, their wives and children. The lobby of the Hotel George V is now full of little Saudi Arabian princes and princesses playing soccer between the chairs while their parents are out trying to figure out how to spend millions of dollars' worth of oil royalties in Paris shops. The employees of the hotel have strict orders not to remonstrate the children for anything they do because an average Arab kid in a Paris hotel spends $100 a day ordering from room service.

There has been a drought in northern France, and this has given the French merchants an excuse to raise their prices not only on food products in the drought zone, but on other things that ordinarily woul not be affected by water.

A handbag I priced on the Faubourg St. Honore cost $450. The lady in the store explained to me it was "because of the drought."

A man's shirt in a window near the Place de l'Opera had been marked up from $40 to $50 "because of the drought."

Even a Louis V table in an antique shop had increased by $8,000 because of the dry weather in Normandy. The antique merchant explained that because of the lack of water the dealers had to slaughter all their Louis V tables, since they couldn't afford to feed them any more.

The big question I was constantly asked in Paris by the French was, "What do the Americans think of Giscard d'Estaing and France?"

I had to be honest and explain that Giscard was probably as well known in the United States as Richard Schweiker, and the last time France was mentioned in the United States was when some Croatians hijacked an airplane flying from New York to Chicago.

"But it isn't our fault," I explained to my French friends. "Most Americans are only interested in the countries Henry Kissinger is interested in. At the moment Henry has decided he prefers Africa to France, and we have to go along with him."

"Why?" a Frenchman asked me.

"Because Henry knows best," I replied. "The national intersts of the United States are inexorably tied to Namibia, Rhodesia and South Africa. It came as a surprise to most of us, but if Henry says, 'That's where it's happening,' we have no choice but put our prestige and money on the line. Henry doesn't fly around the world for nothing."

My French friend said, "He's making a big mistake getting into that stew."

"Ordinarily I would agree with you, but as an American I cannot question Henry's reasons for taking such a big interest in southern Africa. Besides, he may have something going for him in Capetown that none of us knows about."

My French friend said, "Do you think Kissinger will stay on if Ford is elected President?"

"He'll have to," I said. "He can't quit until Namibia is a free nation."

"Where is Namibia?"

"If we Americans knew," I replied testily, "do you think we'd tell you?"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. Site for PLO Fund-Raising

by Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Palestine Liberation Organization is raising funds in the United States for its guerrilla activities. On at least one occasion, money has been routed through the PLO's Permanent Observer post at the United Nations.

The funds collected from PLO sympathizers in this country have been deposited in a PLO account overseas. The account is used to finance PLO operations, presumably including terrorist raids and airplane hijackings.

Through several intermediaries, we have obtained proof of the clandestine PLO collections in the United States. It consists of a thank-you note, written in Arabic on the stationery of the PLO's United Nations office. The letter is signed by Jacob El-Oubedi, the PLO's top fund-raisier in Beirut, and is addressed to the "Palestinian Committee in the State of Virginia."

It relates how the Virginians had collected $4,084, which El-Oubedi said would go into the "PLO national chest." El-Oubedi's code name, by the way, is "Abu Khaled."

"We hope you will continue to work for our holy cause and a revolutionary victory," wrote El-Oubedi. He noted that the Virginian's money had been turned over to him by the PLO director in New York, Zoher Tarazi.

Tarazi acknowledged that El-Oubedi had been in the United States and that a fund-raising effort is going on. But he insisted forcefully: "They are not using this channel" for collecting funds.

We pointed out that El-Oubedi's letter was written on the PLO's United Nations stationery. Tarazi then recalled that the Virginians had delivered the $4,084 check to him, and that he had forwarded it to El-Oubedi. "We were just a pigeon drop," he said.

Although Tarazi admitted the fund drive reached into many states, he said money for the PLO was scarce. "When I think about the billions going to other places!!" he exclaimed. He alluded to the massive fund-raising efforts in behalf of Israel.

Footnote: The PLO is registered with the Justice Department as a foreign agent, but only for "information activities," not fund collecting. There is no registartion for El-Oubedi.

KISSINGER'S CREDIBILITY: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is held in such low esteem in Saudi Arabia that former American Ambassador James E. Akins wrote despairingly from Jidda: "I sometimes wonder how we can maintain any influence at all in this country, and I strongly suspect we're on a deep downward path here."

Akins confided his views in secret memos and letters, which we have obtained.

Kissinger's "credibility in Saudi Arabia," wrote the former ambassador, "is approximately the same as it is in the U.S. Senate."

In a secret "memorandum for the file," dated Aug. 28, 1975, he told of a private conversation with Saudi oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani. The powerful oil minister complained of the "'games' the U.S. is playing in the Middle East."

Kissinger's tactics "had long been discussed in Saudi Arabia," and the Saudis had concluded that the United States was "putting all (its) cards on Iran," Yamani told the ambasssador.

"It was obvious," Yamani explained, "that the State Department had adopted a pro-Iran, anti-Arab line, and he wondered if President Ford would fall for it. He hoped not."

The Saudis had as high an opinion of Akins as they had a low opinion of Kissinger. Thus Akins' recent dismissal, he wrote, was viewed by the Saudis "as a move more against them than against me."

In a recent letter to Treasury Secretary William Simon, Akins reported: "The Saudis intended to take up my dismissal when Kissinger was here and make a major issue of it. I asked them, as a personal favor, not to do so."

But Kissinger misinterpreted their failure to react, according to Akins. "Kissinger has concluded that their non-reaction shows they got his 'message' and are frightened."

On the contrary, Akins related how the Saudis had been deriding Kissinger. Because the ambassador had tried to defend his boss, two top ministers, Zaki Yamani and Isham Nazer, "have been taunting me for the last week," he reported, "with my past staunch vigorous defense of Kissinger. Both of them claim they saw through him immediately and take great joy in quoting verbatim my defense of him and his policies."

Kissinger also had the mistaken idea, according to Akins' secret letter, that he had made a favorable impression upon the late King Faisal. The Saudis "find it hilariously funny," wrote Akins, "that Kissinger has claimed that it was he himself the King came to like and trust."

The Saudis liked to kid Akins about these matters. Related the former ambassador: "I give them as stony a 'no comment' as I can manage."

Footnote: We reached Akins in London. He confirmed that he had written secret letters and memos but refused to comment on them.

CON MAN: Last year, we reported that a cunning con man named Thomas R. Faernstrom had collected $30,000 by using other men's names to pick up re-enlistment bonuses from the armed services. Then he would move on to "re-enlist" all over again.

The FBI finally caught up with him, and he is in prison. But Pentagon gumshoes now believe their $30,000 estimate was far too low. Faernstrom may have bilked the military of $600,000 in 10 years.

Attends Civil Defense meeting on nuclear attack

Gerald Howard, civil defense director for Sikeston, attended a three-day conference Sept. 9-12, in Springfield, which had nuclear attack as its theme, with a portion on natural disaster.

The meeting was held by invitation only through the state office of Civil Preparedness. A total of 155people were present, including county judges; chiefs of Police; safety directors; and civil defense directors. The meeting focused on updating shelters for fall-out and warning systems, how to organize in case of nuclear attack and how to prepare a city faced with this disaster.

Job market is wide open for degrees in fire science

WARRENSBURG -- The job market is wide open for people with a bachelor of science or a master's degree in fire science, according to Dr. Robert L. Marshall, dean of the School of Public Services at Central Missouri State University.

Trained personel are needed today in the field of fire science, and that is why we are working so hard to develop programs which will meet this growing need," Marshall declared.

Marshall's comments came with the announcement that a St. Louis fireman, Lt. Mauro R. Gonzalez, had successfully completed requirements for a bachelor of science degree in fire science in a program jointly sponsored by the Missouri Safety Center of Central Missouri State University and the St. Louis Community College at Forest Park.

Gonzalez, who has served in the Maplewood Fire Department for eight years, is the first graduate of the program which was started there only a year ago., completing all of his course work at Forest Park.

CMSU has a similar arrangement with the Penn Valley Community College in Kansas City. A two-year, associate degree program was started in 1973, and the first three students completed requirements for the B.S. degree in fire science this summer. CMSU's four-year program was started in 1974.

"Students from Oklahoma State are currently enrolled in graduate programs in the CMSUSchool of Public Services because we are one of the few institutions in the nation which offers advanced degrees in public service areas such as industrial safety, industrial hygiene, industrial security, criminal justice administration, traffic safety and administration," Marshall said.

Current enrollment in degree programs of the School of Public Ser vices at CMSU is approximately 2,000. As of last spring, the university has graduated 1,608 students in public service areas -- 978 with undergraduate degrees and 630 with graduate degrees.

One of the main reasons for the growth ininterest in fire safety is because of the increasing number of deaths and injury caused by fires and the subsequent enactment of the Fire Safety Act of 1974.

This problem has created a tremendous need to develop better qualified fire specialists. As a result, many fire companies are sending personnel to CMSU or to the community colleges in Kansas City and St. Louis, in an effort to upgrade their qualifications and thus strengthen the capabilities of entire fire departments.

In addition to upgrading of current staffs, graduates of this program have a variety of career opportunities open to them, including positions as fire science teachers on current staffs of fire departments or as teachers in colleges and universities, as fire specialists with insurance companies, in a variety of industrial positions and with all levels of government in the national fire institute or in state fire marshal's offices.

With modern technology demanding that more emphasis be placed upon the education and qualifications of individuals in fire science fields, this program has been designed to provide specialized training in such areas as inspecting techniques, safety codes and ordinances, insurance problems, alarm systems, fire protection techniques and the conducting of fire protection and safety programs for departmental personnel or for community groups.

Detailed information about the fire science program available at either Central Missouri State University or in Kansas City or St. Louis may be obtained by writing to: Missouri Safety Center, School of Public Services, Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, 64093.

4 area women to aid in mental health drive

JEFFERSON CITY -- Four area women have been named community chairwomen for the Mental Health Association in Missouri.

Alice Hall of New Madrid, Mrs. Wanda Morgan of Essex, Mrs. Marlin Swinger of Morehouse and Mrs. Don Lancaster of Risco have been named to lead their communities in a house- to- house campaign this month to collect funds to promote mental health.

September is Mental helath Month, and donations will benefit the Mental Health Association in Missouri.

The Mental Health Association is not a government agency. The association is a citizens advocacy group working on behalf of the mentally ill.

"Mental and emotional problems are more common than many people think,"says Dr. Deems Brooks, president of the Mental Health Association in Missouri. "In fact," he said, "one out of every four families is affected by mental illness."

Because mental and emotional problems are so widespread, and because many people resond better to treatment close to home, the association is working to see that community services become available for all Missourians.

"In Missouri, a large percentage of the population does not have access to community mental health and mental retardation centers," said Dr. Brooks.

He said on oe the main priorities of the association is to make community services available to our citizens while continuing to support and improve psychiatric hospitals.

To continue work on behalf of the mentally ill, the Mental Health Association needs public support, such as this house- to - house dirve.

Jean Collins attends Human Rights commission meeting

JEFFERSON CITY -- Ten of the new commissioners of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights met here Sept. 11 for their first regular meeting.

In addition to staff, those present and the districts they represent, were as follows: Alvin L. Brooks, chairman; Donald West, 1st District; Larry Carp, 2nd District; Carrie Dunson, 4th District; Basil L. North, Jr., 5th District; Harrison Cornelius, 6th District; Harold "Topper"Glass, 7th District; Joan Krauskopf, 8th District; Melvin Washington, 9th District; and Jean Collins, of Sikeston 10th District. The remaining commissioner from the 3rd District has not yet been appointed by Gov. Christopher Bond.

In July, a committee, representing a cross section of the state and not affiliated with the Missouri commission, was selected by Brooks to screen the 160 applicantsf for the executive and deputy director positions. The selections they made were submitted at the Sept. 11 meeting and the commissioners agreed to accept the screening committee's report, although they also have the prerogative to review all 160 applications.

They will personally interview the applicants and it is their hope that an executive director can be selected by Oct. 15.

In addition to other business, Brooks set up three separate panels for the purpose of issuing the findings of fact, conclusions of law and order on those employment public hearings that were awaiting an official decision. The hearing panels will review what has transpired to this point and will report on them at the next commission meeting.

Commissioners Carp, West and Washington will review the case pending against Jensen Salsbery Laboratories, which was heard before sormer commissioners on March 24, 1975.

Commissioners Krauskopf, Collins, Dunson and Glass will act on two cases. One is pending against the board of education of the North Kansas City School District, and the other is aginst Consolidated School District No. 2 of Raytonw. Both were heard on May 29, 1975.

The complaint against the St. Joseph Police Department, heard on Dec. 11, 1975, will be decided by Commissioners Brooks, North and Cornelius.

The law requires that if the commission finds evidence at the hearing that an employer has engaged in an unlawful employment practice, the commission shall state its findings and shall issue and serve an order requiring the employer to cease and desist fom the unlawful practice.

Brooks said, "The commissioners have agreed, unanimously, to meet as frequently as possible to deal with the many areas of importance that concern of our commission and the citzens of Missouri."

The next commission meeting is scheduled at 8 p.m. Sept. 25 at the Sheraton Airport Hotel, 4201 N. Lindberg Blvd., St. Louis. Agenda items for that meeting will involve budget matters, personnel matters and a report on cases heard pending decisions, if available.

A 10-minute call to San Francisco doesn't take a lot of dough.

For just $2.44 or less, you could take down these recipes by Long Distance.

We're printing these recipes to make a point: a Long Distance call lets you say so much, for so little.

In a 10-minute phone call to San Francisco, between 5 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. tonight, you could take down the recipes below. And by dialing 1+, the most you pay is $2.44, plus tax.

So enjoy a pleasant visit tonight by Long Distance. Whether you call to get a couple recipes... or just to find out what's cookin'.

1. SOURDOUGH STARTER

1 package active dry yeast
2½ cups warm water (105° to 115°)
1 cup instant nonfat dry milk
2 tablespoons sugar
4 cups all-purpose flour

a) Stir yeast, water, dry milk and sugar in 2½ quart crock or non-metallic bowl until yeast is dissolved. Stir in fleur gradually until a smooth batter forms. Let stand loosely covered in warm place, 3 to 5 days. Stir down batter occasionally. Store loosely covered in refrigerator.

b) Replace exact amount of starter used for each recipe by stirring equal amounts of homogenized milk and flour back into starter. (For example, replace 1 cup starter with ½ cup homogenized milk and ½ cup flour). Let stand loosely covered until it bubbles, overnight. Stir down. Each time this process is repeated, the starter becomes more active and develops a more sour flavor. Note: if stored as much as two to three weeks between usings, just pour off the watery layer on top and replace following procedure in (b).

2. SOURDOUGH BREAD STICKS

1 cup instant nonfat dry milk
1 cup warm water (105° to 115°)
1 cup Sourdough Starter (see Recipe No. 1)
2 cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ to 1 cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted

a) Mix dry milk, water, Sourdough Starter and 2 cups flour in non-metallic bowl; cover loosely. Let stand in warm place until mixture is coarse and bubbly, at least 8 hours.

b) Mix oil, salt, sugar and baking soda into sourdough mixture. Stir in enough of the remaining flour to make dough easy to handle. Knead dough lightly on well-floured board, about 2 minutes.

c) Roll dough into rectangle, 15 x 10 inches, on well-floured board. Cut into fifteen 1-inch strips. Roll each strip into even round strand, about 14 inches long. Double strand over and twist to form bread stick. Place bread sticks on greased baking sheet; brush with melted butter. Cover with plastic wrap. Let rise in warm place until double, 1 to 1½ hours.

d) Heat oven to 375°. Bake bread sticks until golden brown, 30 to 35 minutes. (Makes 15).

Attends Civil Defense meeting on nuclear attack

Gerald Howard, civil defense director for Sikeston, attended a three-day conference Sept. 9-12, in Springfield, which had nuclear attack as its theme, with a portion on natural disaster.

The meeting was held by invitation only through the state office of Civil Preparedness. A total of 156people were present, including county judgees; chiefs of Police; safety directors; and civil defense directors. The meeting focused on updating shelters for fall-out and warning systems, how to organize in case of nuclear attack and how to prepare a city faced with this disaster.

Job market is wide open for degrees in fire science

WARRENSBURG -- The job market is wide open for people with a bachelor of science or a master's degree in fire science, according to Dr. Robert L. Marshall, dean of the School of Public Services at Central Missouri State University.

Trained personel are needed today in the field of fire science, and that is why we are working so hard to develop programs which will meet this growing need," Marshall declared.

Marshall's comments came with the announcement that a St. Louis fireman, Lt. Mauro R. Gonzalez, had successfully completed requirements for a bachelor of science degree in fire science in a program jointly sponsored by the Missouri Safety Center of Central Missouri State University and the St. Louis Community College at Forest Park.

Gonzalez, who has served in the Maplewood Fire Department for eight years, is the first graduate of the program which was started there only a year ago., completing all of his course work at Forest Park.

CMSU has a similar arrangement with the Penn Valley Community College in Kansas City. A two-year, associate degree program was started in 1973, and the first three students completed requirements for the B.S. degree in fire science this summer. CMSU's four-year program was started in 1974.

"Students from Oklahoma State are currently enrolled in graduate programs in the CMSUSchool of Public Services because we are one of the few institutions in the nation which offers advanced degrees in public service areas such as industrial safety, industrial hygiene, industrial security, criminal justice administration, traffic safety and administration," Marshall said.

Current enrollment in degree programs of the School of Public Ser vices at CMSU is approximately 2,000. As of last spring, the university has graduated 1,608 students in public service areas – 978 with undergraduate degrees and 630 with graduate degrees.

One of the main reasons for the growth ininterest in fire safety is because of the increasing number of deaths and injury caused by fires and the subsequent enactment of the Fire Safety Act of 1974.

This problem has created a tremendous need to develop better qualified fire specialists . As a result, many fire companies are sending personnel to CMSU or to the community colleges in Kansas City and St. Louis, in an effort to upgrade their qualifications and thus strengthen the capabilities of entire fire departments.

In addition to upgrading of current staffs, graduates of this program have a variety of career opportunities open to them, including positions as fire science teachers on current staffs of fire departments or as teachers in colleges and universities, as fire specialists with insurance companies, in a variety of industrial positions and with all levels of governement in the national fire institute or in state fire marshal's offices.

With modern technology demanding that more emphasis be placed upon the education and qualifications of individuals in fire science fields, this program has been designed to provide specialized training in such areas as inspecting techniques, safety codes and ordinances, insurance problems, alarm systems, fire protection techniques and the conducting of fire protection and safety programs for departmental personnel or for community groups.

Detailed information about the fire science program available at either Central Missouri State University or in Kansas City or St. Louis may be obtained by writing to: Missouri Safety Center, School of Public Services, Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, 64093.

4 area women to aid in mental health drive

JEFFERSON CITY -- Four area women have been named community chairwomen for the Mental Health Association in Missouri.

Alice Hall of New Madrid, Mrs. Wanda Morgan of Essex, Mrs. Marlin Swinger of Morehouse and Mrs. Don Lancaster of Risco have been named to lead their communities in a house- to- house campaign this month to collect funds to promote mental health.

September is Mental helath Month, and donations will benefit the Mental Health Association in Missouri.

The Mental Health Association is not a government agency. The association is a citizens advocacy group working on behalf of the mentally ill.

"Mental and emotional problems are more common than many people think,"says Dr. Deems Brooks, presidnet of the Mental Health Association in Missouri. "In fact," he said, "one out of every four families is affected by mental illness."

Because mental and emotional problems are so widespread, and because many people resond better to treatment close to home, the association is working to see that community services become available for all Missourians.

"In Missouri, a large percentage of the population does not have access to community mental health and mental retardation centers," said Dr. Brooks.

He said on oe the main priorities of the association is to make community services available to our citizens while continuing to support and improve psychiatric hospitals.

To continue work on behalf of the mentally ill, the Mental Health Association needs public support, such as this house- to - house dirve.

Jean Collins attends Human Rights commission meeting

JEFFERSON CITY – Ten of the new commissioners of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights met here Sept. 11 for their first regular meeting.

In addition to staff, those present and the districts they represent, were as follows: Alvin L. Brooks, chairman; Donald West, 1st District; Larry Carp, 2nd District; Carrie Dunson, 4th District; Basil L. North, Jr., 5th District; Harrison Cornelius, 6th District; Harold "Topper"Glass, 7th District; Joan Krauskopf, 8th District; Melvin Washington, 9th District; and Jean Collins, of Sikeston 10th District. The remaining commissioner from the 3rd District has not yet been appointed by Gov. Christopher Bond.

In July, a committee, representing a cross section of the state and not affiliated with the Missouri commission, was selected by Brooks to screen the 160 applicantsf for the executive and deputy director positions. The selections they made were submitted at the Sept. 11 meeting and the commissioners agreed to accept the screening committee's report, although they also have the prerogative to review all 160 applications.

They will personally interview the applicants and it is their hope that an executive director can be selected by Oct. 15.

In addition to other business, Brooks set up three separate panels for the purpose of issuing the findings of fact, conclusions of law and order on those employment public hearings that were awaiting an official decision. The hearing panels will review what has transpired to this point and will report on them at the next commission meeting.

Commissioners Carp, West and Washington will review the case pending against Jensen Salsbery Laboratories, which was heard before sormer commissioners on March 24, 1975.

Commissioners Krauskopf, Collins, Dunson and Glass will act on two cases. One is pending against the board of education of the North Kansas City School District, and the other is aginst Consolidated School District No. 2 of Raytonw. Both were heard on May 29, 1975.

The complaint against the St. Joseph Police Department, heard on Dec. 11, 1975, will be decided by Commissioners Brooks, North and Cornelius.

The law requires that if the commission finds evidence at the hearing that an employer has engaged in an unlawful employment practice, the commission shall state its findings and shall issue and serve an order requiring the employer to cease and desist fom the unlawful practice.

Brooks said, "The commissioners have agreed, unanimously, to meet as frequently as possible to deal with the many areas of importance that concern of our commission and the citzens of Missouri."

The next commission meeting is scheduled at 8 p.m. Sept. 25 at the Sheraton Airport Hotel, 4201 N. Lindberg Blvd., St. Louis. Agenda items for that meeting will involve budget matters, personnel matters and a report on cases heard pending decisions, if available.

A 10-minute call to San Francisco doesn't take a lot of dough.

For just $2.44 or less, you could take down these recipes by Long Distance.

We're printing these recipes to make a point: a Long Distance call lets you say so much, for so little.

In a 10-minute phone call to San Francisco, between 5 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. tonight, you could take down the recipes below. And by dialing 1+, the most you pay is $2.44, plus tax.

So enjoy a pleasant visit tonight by Long Distance. Whether you call to get a couple recipes . . . or just to find out what's cookin'.

1. SOURDOUGH STARTER

1 package active dry yeast
2½ cups warm water (105° to 115°)
1 cup instant nonfat dry milk
2 tablespoons sugar
4 cups all-purpose flour

a) Stir yeast, water, dry milk and sugar in 2½ quart crock or non-metallic bowl until yeast is dissolved. Stir in flour gradually until a smooth batter forms. Let stand loosely covered in warm place, 3 to 5 days. Stir down batter occasionally. Store loosely covered in refrigerator.

b) Replace exact amount of starter used for each recipe by stirring equal amounts of homogenized milk and flour back into starter. (For example, replace 1 cup starter with ½ cup homogenized milk and ½ cup flour). Let stand loosely covered until it bubbles, overnight. Stir down. Each time this process is repeated, the starter becomes more active and develops a more sour flavor. Note: if stored as much as two to three weeks between usings, just pour off the watery layer on top and replace following procedure in (b).

2. SOURDOUGH BREAD STICKS

1 cup instant nonfat dry milk
1 cup warm water (105° to 115°)
1 cup Sourdough Starter (see Recipe No. 1)
2 cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ to 1 cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted

a) Mix dry milk, water, Sourdough Starter and 2 cups flour in non-metallic bowl; cover loosely. Let stand in warm place until mixture is coarse and bubbly, at least 8 hours.

b) Mix oil, salt, sugar and baking soda into sourdough mixture. Stir in enough of the remaining flour to make dough easy to handle. Knead dough lightly on well-floured board, about 2 minutes.

c) Roll dough into rectangle, 15 x 10 inches, on well-floured board. Cut into fifteen 1-inch strips. Roll each strip into even round strand, about 14 inches long. Double strand over and twist to form bread stick. Place bread sticks on greased baking sheet; brush with melted butter. Cover with plastic wrap. Let rise in warm place until double, 1 to 1½ hours.

d) Heat oven to 375°. Bake bread sticks until golden brown, 30 to 35 minutes. (Makes 15).

Parachuting

It's just plane fun

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

She plays the organ and piano and has a degree in psychology, but 24-year-old Debby Schmidt's thrills come from falling out of airplanes. A parachutist, she has made about 1,800 freefall jumps.

Last year she was Women's National Champion and this year she was acclaimed Women's National Accuracy Champion. She is preparing to compete with other members of the 10-women, 10-men, U.S. National Parachute Team at the world parachuting jumps in Rome.

"I have a good chance; one reason, I'm at the field 12 to 15 hours a day, jumping six to nine times," she explained, adding that "our team is a lot stronger than it has been in recent years."

The first woman to break a national record of 10 dead centers — the target area on the ground is four inches in diameter — Debby explains that "freefall is where you are totally away from the airplane flying by yourself and pulling your own ripcord as opposed to the automatic pullout used by the army." In the United States "you can't go higher than 15,000 feet without oxygen though," she explained.

"Parachute jumping must be done where the weather is good," observed Debby, who jumps with the team at Raiford, N.C. "Florida or Arizona are ideal climates and I could probably jump 360 days a year in those states, but North Carolina is good except maybe for January, when it may be cloudy or a little cold."

She lives nearby in a trailer because of its convenience. Being near the field is all that matters, she says. She doesn't see much of the trailer, since she's away from it at least 12 hours a day.

Group seeks demonstrator

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Wanted — a woman who participated in the Missouri Roadside Demonstration of 1939. A non-profit group of historians and film makers called the Women's Labor History Film Project is producing a documentary film about women's participation in the work force from the 1930's to the present.

The Missouri Roadside Demonstration occurred near Cape Girardeau and the group believes it was one of the most significant activities of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union.

Anyone who did participate in the demonstration, or who knows of a woman who did, is asked to call Cathy Clinton of Cape Girardeau at 334-7085.

Course designed to improve adult-child relationships

"Building Relationships with Children" is the title of a night course being offered for the first time by the Cape Girardeau Vocational- Technical School.

Note to new cooks: mixing bowls often come in sets of three. You may find it easier to mix in bowls with slanting sides than in bowls with straight sides, so take this into consideration when you are equipping your kitchen.

The course is designed for parents and teachers of children and teenagers who are desiring to communicate in a deeper, more meaningful way with their children.

One of the texts used in the course which begins Thursday, is Dr. Thomas Gordon's, "Parent Effectiveness Training." Mrs. Floyd Petzoldt, former Sikeston counselor at Lee Hunter School and instructor for the course, feels that the family unit can be strengthened considerably and that parents can actually enjoy the task of raising responsible happy children when the communication gap between the parent and child is closed.

However, she said, it can only be closed when parents use skills that enable them to listen and talk to their children in an open and accepting way. The course will teach parents how to listen so their children will talk with them and how to talk so that their children will be more accepting toward their parents' ideas. Lectures, discussions and actual practice of these skills will continue for the eight weeks duration of the course, which will meet from 6:30 — 9:30 p.m.

For more information and enrollment, call the Cape Girardeau Vocational-Technical School at 334-0826. The school will accept late enrollees.

Ann Landers

Parents of suicide want to know reason

Dear Ann Landers: Six months ago our beautiful, bright, full-of-life daughter, age 16, took her father's revolver and shot herself through the head. We are heartsick and baffled. Why? Why? Why?

One of her friends told us she was on drugs. An autopsy proved it was not true. Another friend said she was very depressed and unhappy about the materialistic values of her parents. If so, we never had an inkling of it. Our daughter was extremely affectionate and outgoing. While we had the usual parent-teenager differences, I can't recall any major areas of conflict.

She was in love and her sweetheart dropped her for another girl — her best friend, in fact. It was a terrible blow.

When we heard the shot and rushed to her room (it was midnight) we found our darling girl lying on the bed, already dead, the phone still in her hand. She had been talking to him.

Why would a well-adjusted, beautiful 16-year-old, with everything in the world to live for, do such a thing? Please help us find the answers. We are — Still Searching

Dear Searching: No two suicides are exactly alike. Some people speak of self-destruction frequently, brood, threaten, then finally do it. Others pull the trigger, or swallow the pills, or jump out a window on the spur of the moment — seized by an overwhelming compulsion to "get even" — punish someone to make them sorry. Of course these acts are totally irrational. What makes it so tragic is the finality of such impetuous decisions. My heart goes out to you and your family.

Dear Ann Landers: You insulted millions of readers with your remark to "No Beauty Winner" when you said, "No one has to go through life with kinky hair these days, unless he wants to."

I am black and was born with "kinky" hair. Perhaps, by white standards, kinky hair is undesirable, but it happens to be an ethnic characteristic and I resent your inference that it's a burden or a curse. No wonder black children grow up feeling inferior. Such statements undermine their self-confidence.

But kinky hair can't be ALL bad. Do you have any idea how many women get permanents every year? I hope you'll print my letter and apologize, explain, or at least comment on it. I'd hate to think Ann Landers is a bigot. — Irritated In Michigan

Dear Mich: Me a bigot? I wouldn't dignify the accusation by attempting to defend myself. Anyone who knows me knows better.

Both whites and blacks spend millions of dollars on hair-straighteners as well as permanents — depending on whether a person prefers straight hair or curly. And it seems most people prefer what they weren't born with.

Dear Ann Landers: Now that the moving season is upon us again will you please put something in your column to make life a little more pleasant for the transplants?

Just ask the folks who are moving OUT if they could find it in their hearts to leave a few items for the folks moving IN — like a bar of soap, a few light bulbs and a roll of toilet tissue. A couple of bottles of soda pop in the fridge would be a royal welcome! Thanks, cookie. — Been Thru It Lots

Dear Been: Much obliged for a lovely suggestion. You've planted lots of seeds of good will today!

Ann Landers discusses teenage drinking — its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

"Building Relationships with Children" is the title of a night course being offered for the first time by the Cape Girardeau Vocational- Technical School.

Note to new cooks: mixing bowls often come in sets of three. You may find it easier to mix in bowls with slanting sides than in bowls with straight sides, so take this into consideration when you are equipping your kitchen.

The course is designed for parents and teachers of children and teenagers who are desiring to communicate in a deeper, more meaningful way with their children.

One of the texts used in the course which begins Thursday, is Dr. Thomas Gordon's, "Parent Effectiveness Training." Mrs. Floyd Petzoldt, former Sikeston counselor at Lee Hunter School and instructor for the course, feels that the family unit can be strengthened considerably and that parents can actually enjoy the task of raising responsible happy children when the communication gap between the parent and child is closed.

However, she said, it can only be closed when parents use skills that enable them to listen and talk to their children in an open and accepting way. The course will teach parents how to listen so their children will talk with them and how to talk so that their children will be more accepting toward their parents' ideas. Lectures, discussions and actual practice of these skills will continue for the eight weeks duration of the course, which will meet from 6:30 — 9:30 p.m.

For more information and enrollment, call the Cape Girardeau Vocational-Technical School at 334-0826. The school will accept late enrollees.

Ann Landers

Parents of suicide want to know reason

Dear Ann Landers: Six months ago our beautiful, bright, full-of-life daughter, age 16, took her father's revolver and shot herself through the head. We are heartsick and baffled. Why? Why? Why?

One of her friends told us she was on drugs. An autopsy proved it was not true. Another friend said she was very depressed and unhappy about the materialistic values of her parents. If so, we never had an inkling of it. Our daughter was extremely affectionate and outgoing. While we had the usual parent-teenager differences, I can't recall any major areas of conflict.

She was in love and her sweetheart dropped her for another girl -- her best friend, in fact. It was a terrible blow.

When we heard the shot and rushed to her room (it was midnight) we found our darling girl lying on the bed, already dead, the phone still in her hand. She had been talking to him.

Why would a well-adjusted, beautiful 16-year-old, with everything in the world to live for, do such a thing? Please help us find the answers. We are -- Still Searching

Dear Searching: No two suicides are exactly alike. Some people speak of self-destruction frequently, brood, threaten, then finally do it. Others pull the trigger, or swallow the pills, or jump out a window on the spur of the moment -- seized by an overwhelming compulsion to "get even" -- punish someone to make them sorry. Of course these acts are totally irrational. What makes it so tragic is the finality of such impetuous decisions. My heart goes out to you and your family.

Dear Ann Landers: You insulted millions of readers with your remark to "No Beauty Winner" when you said, "No one has to go through life with kinky hair these days, unless he wants to."

I am black and was born with "kinky" hair. Perhaps, by white standards, kinky hair is undesirable, but it happens to be an ethnic characteristic and I resent your inference that it's a burden or a curse. No wonder black children grow up feeling inferior. Such statements undermine their self-confidence.

But kinky hair can't be ALL bad. Do you have any idea how many women get permanents every year? I hope you'll print my letter and apologize, explain, or at least comment on it. I'd hate to think Ann Landers is a bigot. -- Irritated In Michigan

Dear Mich: Me a bigot? I wouldn't dignify the accusation by attempting to defend myself. Anyone who knows me knows better.

Both whites and blacks spend millions of dollars on hair-straighteners as well as permanents -- depending on whether a person prefers straight hair or curly. And it seems most people prefer what they weren't born with.

Dear Ann Landers: Now that the moving season is upon us again will you please put something in your column to make life a little more pleasant for the transplants?

Just ask the folks who are moving OUT if they could find it in their hearts to leave a few items for the folks moving IN -- like a bar of soap, a few light bulbs and a roll of toilet tissue. A couple of bottles of soda pop in the fridge would be a royal welcome! Thanks, cookie. -- Been Thru It Lots

Dear Been: Much obliged for a lovely suggestion. You've planted lots of seeds of good will today!

Illinois records only big upset

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Leave it to Missouri's giant-killers to provide an upset just when it appeared as though college football's Top Twenty might get through the weekend without one. Unfortunately for the sixth-ranked Tigers, those who live by the upset also die by the upset.

Unranked before the season, Missouri net only cracked The Associated Press' Top Ten but vaulted all the way to sixth place by trouncing Southern California in its opener a week ago. Saturday, however, the Tigers were victimized by Illinois 31-6. If the Tigers remain true to form, second-ranked Ohio State is in for trouble next weekend when Missouri goes to Columbus, Ohio.

"We can't think about the Top Ten," said Illinois quarterback Kurt Steger, who threw touchdown passes of seven and 74 yards to Erick Rouse. "I think that's what Missouri did. I heard over the P.A. (public address) several times, 'Ohio State next week,' so they were thinking about them.

"Missouri was looking ahead to Ohio State. We weren't looking ahead to Baylor. We were looking to Missouri ... and we got them."

But Coach Bob Blackman disagreed. "This was no Missouri letdown," he said. "We put out a super effort all week and played our hearts out."

The effort included 152 rushing yards and two touchdowns by James Coleman.

While Missouri stumbled, last week's upset victims rebounded in convincing fashion.

Eighth-ranked Nebraska, ousted from the No. 1 spot after a tie with Louisiana State, bounced back and crushed Indiana 45-13 with Monte Anthony and Richard Berns each scoring twice.

Alabama, No. 14, recovered from a loss to Mississippi and trampled Southern Methodist 56-3 behind a 419-yard ground assault. "Thanks for the lesson," SMU rookie Coach Ron Meyer told old master Bear Bryant.

Texas, down to 19th in the wake of a loss to Boston College, got Earl Campbell back and needed every one of the powerful fullback's career-high 208 yards, including an 88-yard gallop that set up the winning touchdown, to beat stubborn North Texas State 17-14.

Three teams which dropped from the ratings by losing their openers all got well in a hurry — Southern Cal bombed Oregon 53-0, Notre Dame blanked Purdue 32-0 and Florida thrashed Houston 49-14.

Meanwhile, top-rated Michigan outgained Stanford 546-314 and slaughtered the Cardinals 51-6, seventh-ranked Penn State got nothing from two first-and-goal sitiations and bowed to Ohio State 12-7, and Tony Dorsett scored three times in third-ranked Pitt's 42-14 trouncing of Georgia Tech.

Fourth-ranked Oklahoma prevented Joe Roth from throwing the bomb, sacked the California quarterback three times and whipped the Golden Bears 28-17. Theotis Brown scored two of UCLA's four third-period touchdowns as the fifth-ranked Bruins broke open a tight game and flattened Arizona 37-0.

Sub quarterback Matt Robinson passed for three scores in ninth-ranked Georgia's 41-0 drubbing of Clemson, and 225-pound sophomore Steve Atkins rambled for 133 yards in the first half and a touchdown as No. 10 Maryland downed West Virginia 24-3.

Illinois tailback James Coleman, scores the first of two touchdowns against Missouri Saturday at Columbia. Coleman, a replacement for inured Illinois star Chubby Phillips, had 152- yards rushing as the Illini upset sixth ranked Mizzour 31-6. (Daily Standard photo)

Cardinal defense comes through with shutout

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals had waited too long to let such a moment pass.

The National Football League team, accustomed to having its defense subjected to ridicule, blanked the Green Bay Packers 29-0 Sunday and afterward savored the accomplishment.

"That's it. That's the defense we've been talking about," Marvin Upshaw, the right tackle along a rebuilt Cards line, declared.

"We've got a good defense," Upshaw maintained. "I thought so in training camp, and I was convinced today by what happened."

St. Louis' shutout, its first in 79 regular and postseason games since November, 1970, was not achieved without Green Bay's assistance.

But a holdover from the last Cards unit to register the feat, linebacker Larry Stallings, took Dxkeption to an inference alluding to his teammates' abilities.

"IZ was a good effort," said Stallings, whose contributCofs to the victory included two solo tackles and assists on two others.

"And yet an out-of-town writer had the nerve to come up and ask me, 'How come you guys were so good today and so bad last week?'"

St. Louis, scared during the fourth quarter of a 30-24 triumph over the Seattle Seahawks during opening week, suffered no similar letdown against Green Bay.

By contrast, the Packers buckled under increasing Cards pressure and surrendered four fumbles in addition to suffering three pass interceptions.

Jim Bakken's second of five field goals established a 6-0 St. Louis lead six plays after quarterback Lynn Dickey fumbled away a Green Bay center snap in the opening quarter.

Three quarters later three additional Packer fumbles and two Dickey interceptions had led to 20 additional Cards points.

Bart Starr, the coach of Green Bay, voiced displeasure with Green Bay's offensive mistakes but also saluted a "defense you could actually be proud of."

Until Terry Metcalf and Steve Jones churned two and three yards for late touchdowns, Starr noted, St. Louis' only points had come on Bakken's kicks.

More distressing to Starr was an inept Packer offense which gained only 131 yards and failed to advance beyond the Cards' 38-yard-line.

"We didn't play as an offensive unit," the disappointed Dickey said. "We're just going to have to take a long look at ourselves. It's the whole unit. We're just going to have to snap out of it."

Marvin Upshaw

Blues top Penguins

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rookie second-round draft choice Bryan Sutter scored two goals as the St. Louis Blues defeated the Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2 in a National Hockey League exhibition game Saturday.

Sutter got the first two goals for the Blues, drilling a rebound off his own shot in the first period and deflecting Bob Gassoff's drive from left point in the second.

Cardinal defense comes through with shutout

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals had waited too long to let such a moment pass.

The National Football League team, accustomed to having its defense subjected to ridicule, blanked the Green Bay Packers 29-0 Sunday and afterward savored the accomplishment.

"That's it. That's the defense we've been talking about," Marvin Upshaw, the right ackle along a rebuilt Cards line, declared.

"We've got a good defense," Upshaw maintained. "I thought so in training camp, and I was convinced today by what happened."

St. Louis' shutout, its first in 79 regular and postseason games since November, 1970, was not achieved without Green Bay's assistance.

But a holdover from the last Cards unit to register the feat, linebacker Larry Stallings, took Dxkeption to an inference alluding to his teammates' abilities.

"IZ was a good effort," said Stallings, whose contributCofs to the victory included two solo tackles and assists on two others.

"And yet an out-of-town writer had the nerve to come up and ask me, 'How come you guys were so good today and so bad last week?'"

St. Louis, scared during the fourth quarter of a 30-24 triumph over the Seattle Seahawks during opening week, suffered no similar letdown against Green Bay.

By contrast, the Packers buckled under increasing Cards pressure and surrendered four fumbles in addition to suffering three pass interceptions.

Jim Bakken's second of five field goals established a 6-0 St. Louis lead six plays after quarterback Lynn Dickey fumbled away a Green Bay center snap in the opening quarter.

Three quarters later three additional Packer fumbles and two Dickey interceptions had led to 20 additional Cards points.

Bart Starr, the coach of Green Bay, voiced displeasure with Green Bay's offensive mistakes but also saluted a "defense you could actually be proud of."

Until Terry Metcalf and Steve Jones churned two and three yards for late touchdowns, Starr noted, St. Louis' only points had come on Bakken's kicks.

More distressing to Starr was an inept Packer offense which gained only 131 yards and failed to advance beyond the Cards' 38-yard-line.

"We didn't play as an offensive unit," the disappointed Dickey said. "We're just going to have to take a long look at ourselves. It's the whole unit. We're just going to have to snap out of it."

Blues top Penguins

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rookie second-round draft choice Bryan Sutter scored two goals as the St. Louis Blues defeated the Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2 in a National Hockey League exhibition game Saturday.

Sutter got the first two goals for the Blues, drilling a rebound off his own shot in the first period and deflecting Bob Gassoff's drive from left point in the second.

Reds clinch tie for West Division flag

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are pulling for their closest competitors — the Los Angeles Dodgers — to win.

"We don't want to come to the ballpark Wednesday having won it because San Francisco beat the Dodgers," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose.

The Reds clinched a tie for the National League West Division crown Sunday by defeating San Francisco 5-2. The victory moved Cincinnati to within one victory — or one Los Angeles loss — of winning its fifth West Division title in seven years.

But Rose said the Reds want to wrap up the title with a victory Tuesday night at home against San Diego.

In other NL games Sunday, the Chicago Cubs edged Philadelphia 1-0, the New York Mets nipped Pittsburgh 7-6, Los Angeles crushed Atlanta, 8-1, Houston swept a pair from San Diego by 3-2 scores, and Montreal and St. Louis split a doubleheader, St. Louis winning the first 9-7 and Montreal taking the nightcap 1-0.

Rose slammed three doubles to boost his average to .329, tying him for third best in the league, 13 percentage points behind leader Bill Madlock of Chicago.

While Rose, celebrating his 33rd birthday, slammed three straight doubles, Gary Nolan, 13-9, survived a shaky start, then retired 16 straight batters to give the Reds their victory.

Nolan and Rawley Eastwick teamed up for a four-hitter as Eastwick recorded his 24th save of the season, tops in the majors.

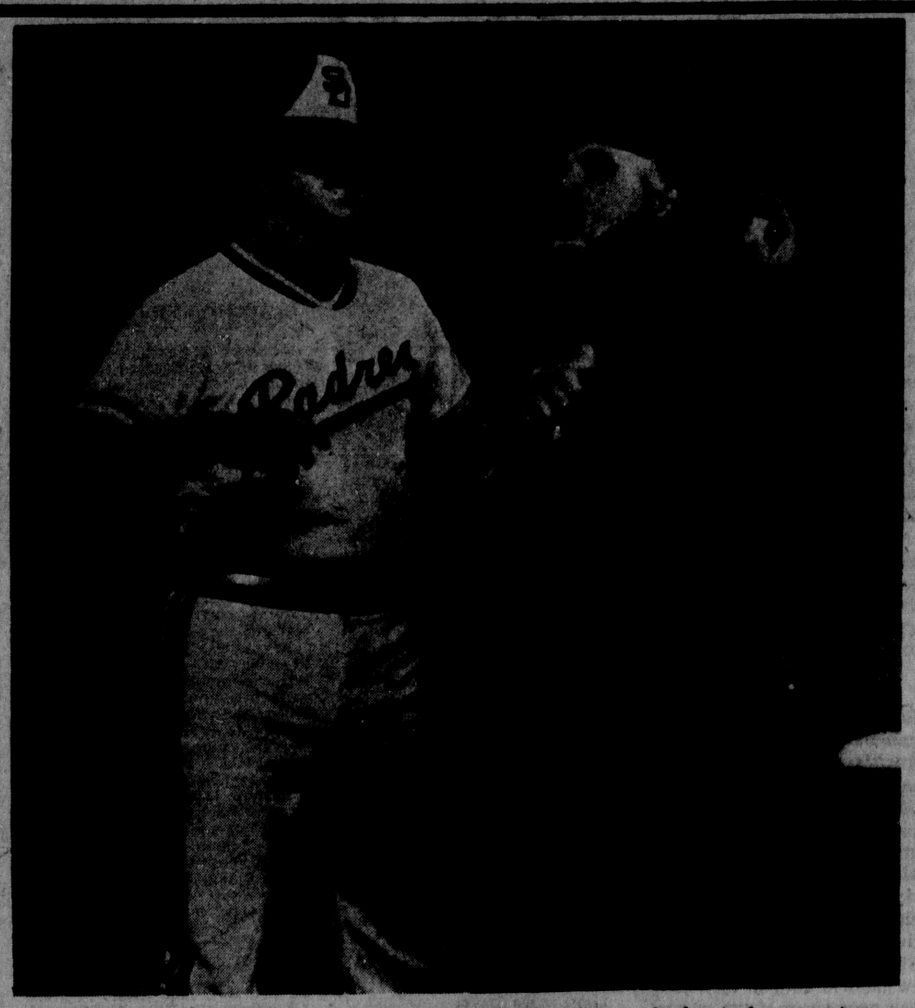
Dodgers 8, Braves 1

Bill Buckner's four hits, including a two-run homer, provided the firepower as Tommy John hurled a six-hitter to lead Los Angeles to its victory over Atlanta. John, 10-10, extended his string of scoreless innings to 13 before the Braves scored in the fifth. Dick Ruthven, 13-16, was the loser.

Mets 7, Pirates 6

Dave Kingman drove home five runs with two homers and a sacrifice fly and Ed Kranepool's pinch single plated the winning run as New York edged Pittsburgh. Of Pittsburgh's six losses in their last 24 games, four have been to the Mets.

Kingman now has 37 home runs, tops in the majors. Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell had two-run homers for Pittsburgh.



Manager John McNamara of the San Diego Padres is punched out of a recent game by umpire Jerry Dale after suggesting that the Dale might possibly have trouble seeing. The ejection spared McNamara from watching his team lose 2-1 to the San Francisco Giants. (AP Wirephoto)

Pennant fever sweeps Kansas City as Royals beat White Sox again

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pennant fever? This town was a pushover.

For 20 years Kansas Citians, who love their baseball, suffered with nothing but losers. Sunday their Kansas City Royals took one giant step toward the threshold of the American League West title and 39,796 boisterous fans, the second largest crowd in the team's history, exulted.

The road to their 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox was a rocky one, but that only heightened the excitement.

The White Sox slugged out five runs in the first two innings before the Royals even placed a runner on base.

But with one out in the fourth, Tom Poquette tagged White Sox starter Chris Knapp for a single. The crowd rumbled. George Brett followed with another single and they cheered. They jumped to their feet when, almost simultaneously, Hal McRae singled and the scoreboard flashed the news that Oakland was getting zapped by Texas, 9-0.

A Royals victory and an Oakland loss would boost Kansas City's lead to 6½ games and 39,796 roared when John Mayberry singled to load the bases.

Al Cowens singled, scoring McRae to pull the Royals to within 5-3, and a feeling of love rippled through the stadium.

Frank White, who has raised his average almost 40 points over the past 80 games, stepped to the plate and, after fouling off a couple of pitches, whistled a line drive into centerfield that Chet Lemon probably misplayed. The ball sailed over his glove, clearing the bases and tying the score, 5-5. Al Cowens' eighth inning single that scored the winning run was almost anticlimatic.

The Royals, who swooned in an August slump and sank from 12½ games in front to 3½, now lead by six, and Oakland comes to town Tuesday for a three-game series.

Big Bucks group gathers

COLUMBIA — Any time two deer hunters get together there are bound to be at least two deer stories. Sometimes, one of them is true....

But when the 310 members of the Show-Me Big Bucks Club get together, there's bound to be 310 deer stories and ALL of them are true. They've been measured.

The group will hold its annual meeting and banquet October 3 at the Ramada Inn here. Bill Crawford, chief of wildlife research for the Department of Conservation, is the featured speaker at the banquet.

In order to qualify for the club, a hunter must take a trophy buck which, when scored by the Boone and Crockett Club system, by an official club scorer, will exceed rigorous club minimums.

Last year, there were 41 deer taken that qualified hunters for admission to the club. None ranked nationally, but over the years Missouri deer have showed quite well on the national Boone and Crockett lists.

Missouri deer are second and fifth on the all-time typical white-tailed deer world rack list. Hunters who have large racks from past seasons are encouraged to have them measured by a qualified scorer. Dean Murphy of the Missouri Department of Conservation in Jefferson City is secretary of the club.

Scores must exceed 150 north of the Missouri River and 140 south for typical antlers and 170 north and 160 south for non-typical.

Redbirds split pair with Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — It's not easy to have a winning record with a team that has won just 51 games, but veteran left-hander Woodie Fryman of Montreal Expos has managed to do it during the 1976 National League baseball season.

The 36-year-old southpaw checked St. Louis on three hits and Ellis Valentine broke a scoreless tie with a run-scoring double in the eighth inning as the Expos edged the Cardinals 1-0 for a split of their doubleheader Sunday.

In the first game, Ted Simmons hit a bases-loaded triple to key a five-run rally in the ninth which gave the Cardinals a 9-5 victory.

Fryman, 13-11, struck out five and walked two in posting his second victory in three decisions against St. Louis this season.

"It's probably the best overall season I've had," said Fryman.

"I had a good year in 1968, but I didn't have good stats. A lot of people just look for the number under the win column.

"I think I have pitched better this year than my 13-11 record shows. That's something an individual has to judge for himself. You can tell yourself if you have done well or not."

The hit by Valentine, a chopper which bounced over shortstop Don Kessinger's head and into shallow left field, scored Wayne Garrett with the run. Garrett led off with a single to right, advanced to second on Andre Dawson's sacrifice bunt and went to third on a wild pitch by loser Lerrin LaGrow, 0-1.

"My old buddy Lerrin LaGrow didn't pitch that badly," added Fryman, who played with LaGrow with Detroit Tigers in the American League.

"He's a good kid. He's got a good arm. He's got a good chance to be around for awhile.

LaGrow gave up eight hits, struck out one and walked one.

In the opener, the teams combined for 29 hits, with St. Louis getting 16 and Montreal 13.

The triple by Simmons followed a single by Jerry Mumphrey, Garry Templeton's double and an intentional walk to Keith Hernandez.

Dale Murray relieved losing pitcher Joe Kerrigan, 2-5, and Simmons greeted him with a smash into the left-center field gap. Lou Brock followed with a double, later scoring on Willie Crawford's single.

Hector Cruz doubled and Lynn McGlothen singled to drive in the first two Cardinal runs in the second before the Expos came back with a run in the bottom of the inning on doubles by Tim Foli and Wayne Garrett.

Reds clinch tie for West Division flag

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are pulling for their closest competitors — the Los Angeles Dodgers — to win.

"We don't want to come to the ballpark Wednesday having won it because San Francisco beat the Dodgers," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose.

The Reds clinched a tie for the National League West Division crown Sunday by defeating San Francisco 5-2. The victory moved Cincinnati to within one victory — or one Los Angeles loss — of winning its fifth West Division title in seven years.

But Rose said the Reds want to wrap up the title with a victory Tuesday night at home against San Diego.

In other NL games Sunday, the Chicago Cubs edged Philadelphia 1-0, the New York Mets nipped Pittsburgh 7-6, Los Angeles crushed Atlanta, 8-1, Houston swept a pair from San Diego by 3-2 scores, and Montreal and St. Louis split a doubleheader, St. Louis winning the first 9-7 and Montreal taking the nightcap 1-0.

Rose slammed three doubles to boost his average to .329, tying him for third best in the league, 13 percentage points behind leader Bill Madlock of Chicago.

While Rose, celebrating his 33rd birthday, slammed three straight doubles, Gary Nolan, 13-9, survived a shaky start, then retired 16 straight batters to give the Reds their victory.

Nolan and Rawley Eastwick teamed up for a four-hitter as Eastwick recorded his 24th save of the season, tops in the majors.

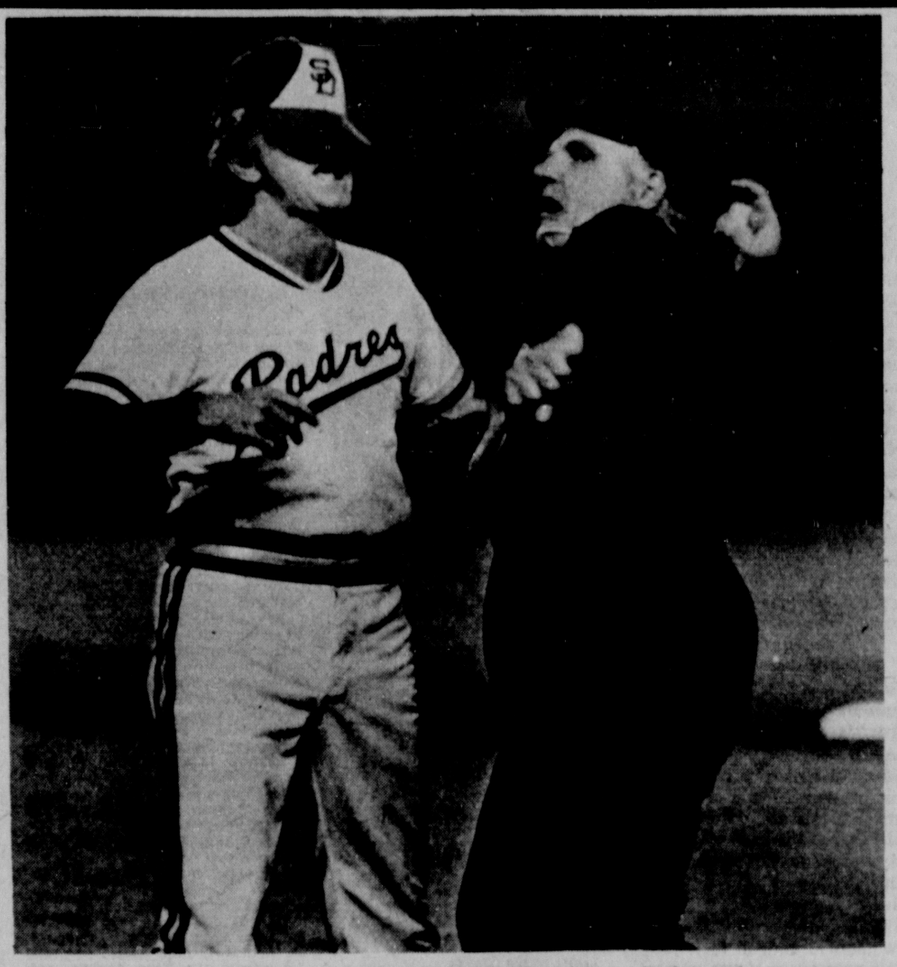
Dodgers 8, Braves 1

Bill Buckner's four hits, including a two-run homer, provided the firepower as Tommy John hurled a six-hitter to lead Los Angeles to its victory over Atlanta. John, 10-10, extended his string of scoreless innings to 13 before the Braves scored in the fifth. Dick Ruthven, 13-16, was the loser.

Mets 7, Pirates 6

Dave Kingman drove home five runs with two homers and a sacrifice fly and Ed Kranepool's pinch single plated the winning run as New York edged Pittsburgh. Of Pittsburgh's six losses in their last 24 games, four have been to the Mets.

Kingman now has 37 home runs, tops in the majors. Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell had two-run homers for Pittsburgh.



Manager John McNamara of the San Diego Padres is punched out of a recent game by umpire Jerry Dale after suggesting that the Dale might possibly have trouble seeing. The ejection spared McNamara from watching his team lose 2-1 to the San Francisco Giants. (AP Wirephoto)

Pennant fever sweeps Kansas City as Royals beat White Sox again

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pennant fever? This town was a pushover.

For 20 years Kansas Citians, who love their baseball, suffered with nothing but losers. Sunday their Kansas City Royals took one giant step toward the threshold of the American League West title and 39,796 boisterous fans, the second largest crowd in the team's history, exulted.

The road to their 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox was a rocky one, but that only heightened the excitement.

The White Sox slugged out five runs in the first two innings before the Royals even placed a runner on base.

But with one out in the fourth, Tom Poquette tagged White Sox starter Chris Knapp for a single. The crowd rumbled. George Brett followed with another single and they cheered. They jumped to their feet when, almost simultaneously, Hal McRae singled and the scoreboard flashed the news that Oakland was getting zapped by Texas, 9-0.

A Royals victory and an Oakland loss would boost Kansas City's lead to 6½ games and 39,796 roared when John Mayberry singled to load the bases.

Al Cowens singled, scoring McRae to pull the Royals to within 5-3, and a feeling of love rippled through the stadium.

Frank White, who has raised his average almost 40 points over the past 50 games, stepped to the plate and, after fouling off a couple of pitches, whistled a line drive into centerfield that Chet Lemon probably misplayed. The ball sailed over his glove, clearing the bases and tying the score, 5-5. Al Cowens' eighth inning single that scored the winning run was almost anticlimatic.

The Royals, who swooned in an August slump and sank from 12½ games in front to 3½, now lead by six, and Oakland comes to town Tuesday for a three-game series.

Big Bucks group gathers

COLUMBIA — Any time two deer hunters get together there are bound to be at least two deer stories. Sometimes, one of them is true....

But when the 310 members of the Show-Me Big Bucks Club get together, there's bound to be 310 deer stories and ALL of them are true. They've been measured.

The group will hold its annual meeting and banquet October 3 at the Ramada Inn here. Bill Crawford, chief of wildlife research for the Department of Conservation, is the featured speaker at the banquet.

In order to qualify for the club, a hunter must take a trophy buck which, when scored by the Boone and Crockett Club system, by an official club scorer, will exceed rigorous club minimums.

Last year, there were 41 deer taken that qualified hunters for admission to the club. None ranked nationally, but over the years Missouri deer have showed quite well on the national Boone and Crockett lists.

Missouri deer are second and fifth on the all-time typical white-tailed deer world rack list. Hunters who have large racks from past seasons are encouraged to have them measured by a qualified scorer. Dean Murphy of the Missouri Department of Conservation in Jefferson City is secretary of the club.

Scores must exceed 150 north of the Missouri River and 140 south for typical antlers and 170 north and 160 south for non-typical.

Redbirds split pair with Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — It's not easy to have a winning record with a team that has won just 51 games, but veteran left-hander Woodie Fryman of Montreal Expos has managed to do it during the 1976 National League baseball season.

The 36-year-old southpaw checked St. Louis on three hits and Ellis Valentine broke a scoreless tie with a run-scoring double in the eighth inning as the Expos edged the Cardinals 1-0 for a split of their doubleheader Sunday.

In the first game, Ted Simmons hit a bases-loaded triple to key a five-run rally in the ninth which gave the Cardinals a 9-5 victory.

Fryman, 13-11, struck out five and walked two in posting his second victory in three decisions against St. Louis this season.

"It's probably the best overall season I've had," said Fryman.

"I had a good year in 1968, but I didn't have good stats. A lot of people just look for the number under the win column.

"I think I have pitched better this year than my 13-11 record shows. That's something an individual has to judge for himself. You can tell yourself if you have done well or not."

The hit by Valentine, a chopper which bounced over shortstop Don Kessinger's head and into shallow left field, scored Wayne Garrett with the run. Garrett led off with a single to right, advanced to second on Andre Dawson's sacrifice bunt and went to third on a wild pitch by loser Lerrin LaGrow, 0-1.

"My old buddy Lerrin LaGrow didn't pitch that badly," added Fryman, who played with LaGrow with Detroit Tigers in the American League.

"He's a good kid. He's got a good arm. He's got a good chance to be around for awhile.

LaGrow gave up eight hits, struck out one and walked one.

In the opener, the teams combined for 29 hits, with St. Louis getting 16 and Montreal 13.

The triple by Simmons followed a single by Jerry Mumphrey, Garry Templeton's double and an intentional walk to Keith Hernandez.

Dale Murray relieved losing pitcher Joe Kerrigan, 2-5, and Simmons greeted him with a smash into the left-center field gap. Lou Brock followed with a double, later scoring on Willie Crawford's single.

Hector Cruz doubled and Lynn McGlothen singled to drive in the first two Cardinal runs in the second before the Expos came back with a run in the bottom of the inning on doubles by Tim Foli and Wayne Garrett.

Matthews--School opened Monday of last week with all teachers present. The following are the teachers who are teaching in the Matthews Public School and Ward schools: George D. Englehart, superintendent; Alvin M. W. Mallers, principal high school; Miss Kathryn Sackman of Cape Girardeau; Miss Elizabeth Brakel; Miss Laura R. Skalshky of Marston; Miss Laura Sharp of New Madrid; Miss Thelma Davis, of East Prairie; and Miss Mabel Meeklem.

Matthews--Mrs. Albert Deane and Misses Alice and Frankie Deane shopped in Sikeston Saturday.

Morehouse--Chis O. Murray, special correspondent for the Globe-Democrat, was in Morehouse Tuesday, in response to information furnished by the Vocational Agriculture instructor, and obtained material for a special feature article depicting the bee activities of O. M. Headlee. The article will appear in about a month.

An effort is to be made by the Highway Department to have Federal Highway No. 60 between Gray Ridge and Morehouse opened to traffic during The Southeast Missouri District Fair. This will enable people wishing to attend from Gray Ridge, Essex, Dexter and other points west to come straight through from Dexter without taking the long detour at Gray Ridge and coming around by way of Cline's Island and Salcedo.

School notes. Dr. B. L. McMullin has offered his services to the high school football eleven, gratis.

Babies born at the Delta Community Hospital on the 14th were: Mr. and Mrs. Ettel Lloyd Hasty of Bell City, a baby girl; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Miller of Wardell; Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Spradling of Matthews are parents of a baby girl; and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Spurlock, 107 Lescher Drive.

Sikeston, Cape Girardeau, New Madrid and, in fact, just about every community of any size between St. Louis and the Arkansas state line will be bypassed if and when the tentative new route for Highway 61 as part of the Interstate Highway System becomes a reality.

Donna Brown of Charleston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beck Brown, will represent Charleston High School as a candidate seeking the title of Cotton Carnival Queen next week.

Luther Glass, 63-year-old resident of Sikeston, was fatally injured yesterday morning when his car struck a barricade on Highway 60 at the Sikeston Drive In Theatre.

The student council of the Morehouse High School has been organized for the 1956-57 school year with Charles "Sonny" Roberson, a senior, and son of E. W. Roberson, as student council president.

Mr. and Mrs. Verlin Stockton of Unionville, Mo., are making their home at 224 South Kingshighway. Mr. Stockton is associated with the Orco Co.

Cy Blanton struck out 20 Joplin, Mo., batters when he pitched a 1933 no-hit game for St. Joseph in the Western League.

Re: Account No. 17261-00

Dear Dr. Burford:

I have again received your bill with the notation that it is for a special report on a potential child abuse case.

I attempted to get the child's mother to take the child to our local physicians who take a dim view of child abuse and provide this service and attempt to assist the Prosecuting Attorney and his office without charge for either their reports or their testimony in court and who also are equipped, as you apparently are not, to take photographs and offer them for introduction into evidence. The child's mother, however, stated she would go to your clinic which is nearer her residence and have you send us a report.

As we are not paying bills this month from the Prosecutor's account, if you will re-submit your statement next month we will try to make some arrangements to see that you get your just compensation for your kind help to law enforcement.

Very truly yours,
JAMES E. MOORE III

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Harris Mainster and his family operate their own peace corps.

Since 1971, the 39-year-old osteopathic surgeon, his wife and four daughters have spent their vacations doing volunteer work in some of the world's most remote areas.

They first went to Nicaragua because a colleague of Mainster told him he had a brother in a religious order there and knew medical help was needed. Upon return, another colleague told Mainster his medical services would be more than welcome in Liberia.

Let's return Sikeston to a Democracy.
Lets stop this wasteful spending of our money.
Here is what five of the appointed offices cost you under the City Manager Form of Government:

City Manager	$41,400.00
Assistant City Manager	$23,562.00
Public Safety Director (Chief of Police)	$27,442.00
City Attorney	$11,325.00
City Police Judge	$5,200.00
Total of five employees	$108,929.00*

The total budget under the City Manager form of government is $1,309,200.00 (one million, three hundred nine thousand and two hundred dollars).
The 1960 population was 13,765 people.
The 1970 population was 14,699 people.
A total increase of 934 people from 1960 to 1970 does not justify such increase to our budget from $369,000.00 to the 1976 figure of $1,309,200.00.

Matthews--School opened Monday of last week with all teachers present. The following are the teachers who are teaching in the Matthews Public School and Ward schools: George D. Englehart, superintendent; Alvin M. W. Mallers, principal high school; Miss Kathryn Sackman of Cape Girardeau; Miss Elizabeth Brakel; Miss Laura R. Skalshky of Marston; Miss Laura Sharp of New Madrid; Miss Thelma Davis, of East Prairie; and Miss Mabel Meeklem.

Matthews--Mrs. Albert Deane and Misses Alice and Frankie Deane shopped in Sikeston Saturday.

Morehouse--Chis O. Murray, special correspondent for the Globe-Democrat, was in Morehouse Tuesday, in response to information furnished by the Vocational Agriculture instructor, and obtained material for a special feature article depicting the bee activities of O. M. Headlee. The article will appear in about a month.

An effort is to be made by the Highway Department to have Federal Highway No. 60 between Gray Ridge and Morehouse opened to traffic during The Southeast Missouri District Fair. This will enable people wishing to attend from Gray Ridge, Essex, Dexter and other points west to come straight through from Dexter without taking the long detour at Gray Ridge and coming around by way of Cline's Island and Salcedo.

Re: Account No. 17261-00

Dear Dr. Burford:

I have again received your bill with the notation that it is for a special report on a potential child abuse case.

I attempted to get the child's mother to take the child to our local physicians who take a dim view of child abuse and provide this service and attempt to assist the Prosecuting Attorney and his office without charge for either their reports or their testimony in court and who also are equipped, as you apparently are not, to take photographs and offer them for introduction into evidence. The child's mother, however, stated she would go to your clinic which is nearer her residence and have you send us a report.

As we are not paying bills this month from the Prosecutor's account, if you will re-submit your statement next month we will try to make some arrangements to see that you get your just compensation for your kind help to law enforcement.

Very truly yours,
JAMES E. MOORE III

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Harris Mainster and his family operate their own peace corps.

Since 1971, the 39-year-old osteopathic surgeon, his wife and four daughters have spent their vacations doing volunteer work in some of the world's most remote areas.

They first went to Nicaragua because a colleague of Mainster told him he had a brother in a religious order there and knew medical help was needed. Upon return, another colleague told Mainster his medical services would be more than welcome in Liberia.

Class of '36 holds reunion

The Sikeston High School class of 1936 held its first reunion Sept. 3 and 4, with 36 class members attending, with their spouses and friends.

A get together was held Sept. 3 at the Holiday Inn. The next morning, the group toured the city by bus, stopping at the present middle school, which was the high school in 1936. Larry Nickell, assistant principal conducted the group through the middle school facilities.

After the tour, 75 persons went to Trailback, the rural home of Tom Baker III, for a picnic lunch.

That evening, 103 persons attended a buffet dinner at the Holiday Inn. Music was provided by Dorothy Matthews, Ruth Kendig and Mamie Jean Poage. The tables were decorated by a committee composed of Jessie Taylor, Velda Joyce, Marie Yeakey, Laura Fakes and J.W. Davis.

Class members received a miniature copy of the 1936 high school yearbook.

The invocation was given by Audrey Allen Kelley of Sikeston. Baker, who now lives in Denver, Colo., the class president, presided over the reunion, and Superintendent of Schools Sam Harbin welcomed the class. The class honored its 10 deceased members, reminisced and enjoyed a program by Lee Bowman and Mrs. Helen Mayhew. Bowman gave out the diplomas in 1936 and Mrs. Mayhew's husband, Peg, now deceased, presented the class in 1936.

Floyd Dillender of Sikeston gave the benediction.

Several persons were given special recognition. Cletis Bidewell of Webster Groves, the class president and former basketball coach in 1936, was presented a silver letter opener.

Judson Boardman and John W. "Red" Davis of Sikeston received engraved letter openers for their help in planning the reunion. Margaret Lee and Pauline Husher of Sikeston assisted.

Prizes were awarded to Maxine Sellards Young of Munich, West Germany, Glenn Williams of Van Nuys, Calif., and Joe Dover of Melbourne, Fla. for traveling the furthest distance to attend; to Stanford Frey of Cape Girardeau and Glenn Williams of Van Nuys, Calif., for having the most children; to Dorothy Dover Ferguson, of Belleville, Ill., Mary Hart Meier of New Madrid, Stanford Frey of Cape Girardeau and Paul Holmes of Sikeston for having the most grandchildren; to Audrey Allen Kelley of Sikeston for being married the longest; and to Tom Baker III for being class president.

Eleven former teachers from Sikeston attended the reunion. They were T.E. Stallings, Electa O'Hara, Uriel Haw, Lucille Mount, Irma Allen, Ruth Kendig, Mildred Harper, Lucille Stubblefield, Margaret Hams, Exalee Keith and Dorothy Matthews.

Guests present from Sikeston were Mrs. J. Otto Hahs, Mrs. Eli Williams, Mrs. Bertie Felker Calloway, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McCollum, Mrs. Edna Shankle, Mrs. Lucille Matthews, Mrs. Bertha Joyce, Mrs. Lon Nall, Mrs. Venita Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Poage, Mrs. Margaret Lee, Pauline Husher, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Imogene LaPlant and Joe Swain.

Other guests were Mrs. L.T. Davey of Colorado Springs, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dameron of Dayton, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bowman Jr. of Milwaukee, Wis., Theobelle Scholes of Granby, Raymond Bandy of Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Hayden of Cape Girardeau and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Kornegger of Mexico.

Ford polishes his prose while Carter barnstorms

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

President Ford is polishing his prose for the upcoming debate, while his Democratic rival, Jimmy Carter, is reviving whistle-stop campaigning in a barnstorming tour of key Eastern states.

Recalling memories of the late President Harry Truman, Carter boards a train in New York City today to whistle stop through New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Ford had a light schedule, leaving plenty of time to rehearse for Thursday night's nationally televised debate with Carter in Philadelphia on domestic issues.

Aides said the President had the substance of what he wants to say "down pretty cold" and was concentrating on how to get his points across without wasting words.

The League of Women Voters said it will stick to its ground rules for the debates, prohibiting television cameras from focusing on the audience, unless both Ford and Carter agreed to a change.

The television networks have protested the restrictions, particularly Richard Salant, the president of CBS News, who said in telegrams to Ford and Carter that barring TV from showing audience reaction would "create the most dangerous precedent" for news coverage.

Tax reform shaped up as a leading subject for the first face-to-face confrontation between the candidates.

Carter traded charges and accusations with Republicans over the weekend, in a controversy that followed an Associated Press interview in which the former Georgia governor expounded on tax revision.

Carter said the purpose of reform should be to shift a substantial portion of the tax burden to persons with higher incomes.

With vice presidential candidate Bob Dole leading the way, GOP critics contended Carter would increase taxes for half the families in America, all those above the median family income of about $12,000 to $15,000 a year.

Charging distortion by Republicans, Carter said Sunday, "I'm not going to add a tax burden on working families and the medium income categories, $15,000."

4). The current average response time to emergency calls is 4 minutes with present staff levels. With proposed cuts, only one squad car would be operating at any time. How long would we have to wait then???

Carter's proposed income tax overhaul produces more argument than facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — So far, the Republican-stirred uproar about Jimmy Carter's proposed overhaul of federal income taxes has produced more argument than information.

For the center of the controversy is a Republican interpretation of Carter's position — an interpretation which the Democratic presidential nominee calls completely distorted.

At this point, the dispute reveals more about campaign tactics and generalizations than about the positions of Carter and President Ford on specific, future changes in the federal tax code.

But there are indications that the next phase of the controversy may include more substantive discussion of rival positions on capital gains and other tax advantages which Carter has indicated he would curtail or eliminate.

If nothing else, the issue has been moved to the center of the campaign stage just in time for the leadoff debate between Ford and Carter on Thursday night.

Since the early days of his campaign, long befoe his nomination, Carter has advocated a total overhaul of the tax code. He has done so in general terms, declining to itemize detailed, specific changes.

Ironically, he was declining to do so again, in an interview with The Associated Press, when he made the comment seized upon by the Republicans as evidence that he wants to raise the income taxes of half the American people.

The issue flared over his description of mean or median income as the line between higher and lower.

Republican vice presidential nominee Bob Dole keynoted an orchestrated campaign that quickly was joined by top administration economic officials, asserting that Carter meant he would raise taxes on those making more than the median.

Carter accused Dole and Ford of completely distorting his position. He said he would never increase taxes on lower and middle income groups.

As he has throughout the campaign, he called for reform of a tax code he describes as a disgrace, urging a shift of the burden to those who make the most money. By way of counterattack, he added that Republicans always have protected "the rich, the big corporations and the special interest groups."

Carter said those groups would pay more under his program.

Carter has not apd did not describe those income categories in dollar terms.

The median family income in 1974 was $12,836, and since has risen slightly. It is the income level at which there are as many families making more money as there are those making less.

Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief issues adviser, said it would take further study to determine the income level at which Carter would propose that taxes be increased. But he said it would be far higher than the median.

The controversy stemmed from Carter's comments in the AP interview on Friday. Carter said that he intends to simplify the tax code, curtail exemptions, and "shift a substantial increase toward those who have the higher incomes," while reducing taxes on those in lower and middle income groups.

Responding to a series of questions that followed, Carter repeatedly said he did not know what level of income would represent the breaking point between those who would pay more and those who would pay less.

Those disclaimers were in keeping with his prior statements on the tax issue, for Carter has sought all along to avoid detailed figures and to keep his proposal in general terms.

Dole began the Republican attack Saturday outside the White House: "I'm astounded ... that he's going to raise taxes for half the American families — anyone above the median income."

Later, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon said Carter "has finally become specific.

"In the first major announcement of his tax plan, he calls for increased taxes on all families earning more than $14,000 a year," Simon said.

Taken literally, and discounting his repeated statements that he didn't know the earnings level at which taxes might be increased, Carter's response could be interpreted to mean he would seek an increase on all those over the median income.

That was the reading chosen by the Republicans.

Carter said in the interview that he saw no problem for the voters in the fact that he had not spelled out the impact of the changes he was advocating.

"I think the principles that I have spelled out to you would in every instance convince the average American family that their taxes are going to be no higher or perhaps even lower in some instances, depending on their income, and that their taxes as levied will be fair," he said.

Dole said on Sunday he didn't care what comments Carter made after the interview. He said Carter had blundered and would be doing a lot of explaining. "But his statements indicate a vote for Carter is a vote to raise taxes," Dole said.

The controversy left unanswered the question of what specific changes would be made in income tax laws and earnings brackets if Carter wins the White House and persuades Congress to do his bidding.

He has said he would have to have at least six months in office, and perhaps a year, to conduct the necessary studies for an overhaul of the tax code.

In the interview he pledged a wholesale elimination of tax advantages, said all income would be treated the same, and that the tax rate would become "truly progressive ... so that the higher an income one has, the higher percentage of income one pays."

But it remains to be seen whether the controversy will be raised beyond the level of argument to become a meaningful discussion of the specific options the two nominees are offering the voters.

Congress faces long week to meet scheduled Oct. 2 adjournment date

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress faces long sessions and loaded calendars this week as it races to make its scheduled Oct. 2 adjournment date.

Congressional leaders seem determined to meet that target, with House Speaker Carl Albert claiming that he will keep his chamber in session all night if necessary.

In the Senate, where the workload appears lighter, Assistant Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has told colleagues to brace for "long daily sessions."

But, added Byrd, "as far as the Senate is concerned, we are definitely on course."

Democratic leaders say they want to prove wrong President Ford's prediction last week that Congress would miss its deadline by at least a week and his claim that he needs to stay in town to keep Congress from "going off the deep end."

Both the House and Senate were to dispose of a number of uncontroversial bills today clear the way for some meatier issues later in the week.

On Tuesday, the Senate votes on a House-passed bill raising the federal unemployment compensation tax on employers. Now an employer pays $21 into a federal fund for each worker earning at least $4,200. The bill would raise that figure to $42 until the current $7.7-billion deficit in the fund, caused by heavy unemployment, is wiped out.

These women lost their lives in the Colorado flood...

But they are still alive. They have a message for you.

On July 31 these women hastily left a weekend retreat in the Colorado Rockies. They had been warned to flee a flash flood which was roaring down the canyon. They started out, but never reached the bottom of the canyon alive. More than 100 others also lost their lives in the Big Thompson Canyon that same night.

A tragedy, people say. It is certain that these seven women who were part of the staff of Campus Crusade for Christ International will be deeply missed by family, friends and fellow staff members.

But what these women and their families would want you to know is that they are more alive than ever—in heaven. That they lived a full and wonderful life on this earth. And that they now are better off in the presence of the loving God and Savior whom they served.

If you were to die today, do you know for certain that you would go to heaven? Would you spend eternity in heaven with Christ or separated from Him forever. For those who have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ, death's sting has been taken away. God is our refuge and strength. A very present help in trouble.

He reaches out in love to all men and women, offering His forgiveness, peace and comfort through Jesus Christ. So there is no reason to fear life or death.

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection, and the life; whoever believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die" (John 11:25,26).

A personal relationship with Jesus Christ doesn't begin at death—but it is available to you now—in life. Twenty-eight other women leaders of Campus Crusade for Christ International left that retreat with these seven. They are still alive—physically as well as spiritually.

But they also have a more keen awareness of the delicate balance between life and death. And more than 5,000 other staff of Campus Crusade for Christ have a keener awareness of life. For them, life is Christ. For the women who died, Christ is life. The message that follows explains what these women want you to know—how you can find new life in Jesus Christ. They had committed themselves to sharing this message in life or in death.

Just as there are physical laws that govern the physical universe, so are there spiritual laws which govern your relationship with God.

LAW ONE

GOD LOVES YOU, AND OFFERS A WONDERFUL PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

(References should be read in context from the Bible wherever possible.)

God's Love

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

God's Plan

(Christ speaking) "I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly" (that it might be full and meaningful) (John 10:10).

Why is it that most people are not experiencing the abundant life?

Because. . .

LAW TWO

MAN IS SINFUL AND SEPARATED FROM GOD. THEREFORE, HE CANNOT KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR HIS LIFE.

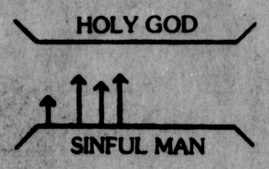
Man Is Sinful

"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Man was created to have fellowship with God; but, because of his stubborn self-will, he chose to go his own independent way and fellowship with God was broken. This self-will, characterized by an attitude of active rebellion or passive indifference, is evidence of what the Bible calls sin.

Man Is Separated

"For the wages of sin is death" (spiritual separation from God) (Romans 6:23).



This diagram illustrates that God is holy and man is sinful. A great gulf separates the two. The arrows illustrate that man is continually trying to reach God and the abundant life through his own efforts, such as a good life, philosophy or religion.

The third law explains the only way to bridge this gulf...

LAW THREE

JESUS CHRIST IS GOD'S ONLY PROVISION FOR MAN'S SIN. THROUGH HIM YOU CAN KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

He Died in Our Place

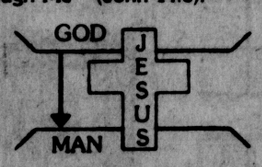
"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

He Rose from the Dead

"Christ died for our sins. . .He was buried. . .He was raised on the third day, according to the Scriptures. . .He appeared to Peter, then to the twelve. After that He appeared to more than five hundred. . ." (I Corinthians 15:3-6).

He Is the Only Way to God

"Jesus said to him, 'I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father, but through Me'" (John 14:6).



This diagram illustrates that God has bridged the gulf which separates us from God by sending His Son, Jesus Christ, to die on the cross in our place to pay the penalty for our sins.

It is not enough just to know these three laws. . .

LAW FOUR

WE MUST INDIVIDUALLY RECEIVE JESUS CHRIST AS SAVIOR AND LORD; THEN WE CAN KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR OUR LIVES.

We Must Receive Christ

"But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name" (John 1:12).

We Receive Christ through Faith

"For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast" (Ephesians 2:8,9).

When We Receive Christ, We Experience a New Birth.

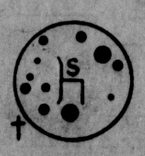
(Read John 3:1-8.)

We Receive Christ by Personal Invitation

(Christ is speaking): "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any one hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him" (Revelation 3:20).

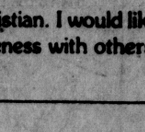
Receiving Christ involves turning from self to God (repentance and trusting Christ to come into our lives to forgive our sins and to make us the kind of person He wants us to be. Just to agree intellectually that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and that He died on the cross for our sins is not enough. Nor is it enough to have an emotional experience. We receive Jesus Christ by faith, as an act of the will.

These two circles represent two kinds of lives:



SELF-DIRECTED LIFE
S—Self on the throne
†—Christ is outside the life
•—Interests are directed by self, often resulting in discord and frustration

CHRIST-DIRECTED LIFE



†—Christ is in the life and on the throne
S—Self is yielding to Christ
•—Interests are directed by Christ, resulting in harmony with God's plan.

Which circle best represents your life?

Which circle would you like to have represent your life?

The following explains how you can receive Christ:

YOU CAN RECEIVE CHRIST RIGHT NOW BY FAITH THROUGH PRAYER

(Prayer is talking with God)

God knows your heart and is not so concerned with your words as He is with the attitude of your heart. The following is a suggested prayer:

"Lord Jesus, I need You. Thank You for dying on the cross for my sins. I open the door of my life and receive You as my Savior and Lord. Thank You for forgiving my sins and giving me eternal life. Take control of the throne of my life. Make me the kind of person You want me to be."

Does this prayer express the desire of your heart?

If it does, pray this prayer right now, and Christ will come into your life, as He promised.

These women lost their lives in the Colorado flood...

But they are still alive. They have a message for you.

On July 31 these women hastily left a weekend retreat in the Colorado Rockies. They had been warned to flee a flash flood which was roaring down the canyon. They started out, but never reached the bottom of the canyon alive. More than 100 others also lost their lives in the Big Thompson Canyon that same night.

A tragedy, people say. It is certain that these seven women who were part of the staff of Campus Crusade for Christ International will be deeply missed by family, friends and fellow staff members.

But what these women and their families would want you to know is that they are more alive than ever—in heaven. That they lived a full and wonderful life on this earth. And that they now are better off in the presence of the loving God and Savior whom they served.

If you were to die today, do you know for certain that you would go to heaven? Would you spend eternity in heaven with Christ or separated from Him forever. For those who have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ, death's sting has been taken away. God is our refuge and strength. A very present help in trouble.

He reaches out in love to all men and women, offering His forgiveness, peace and comfort through Jesus Christ. So there is no reason to fear life or death.

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection, and the life; whoever believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die" (John 11:25,26).

A personal relationship with Jesus Christ doesn't begin at death—but it is available to you now—in life. Twenty-eight other women leaders of Campus Crusade for Christ International left that retreat with these seven. They are still alive—physically as well as spiritually.

But they also have a more keen awareness of the delicate balance between life and death. And more than 5,000 other staff of Campus Crusade for Christ have a keener awareness of life. For them, life is Christ. For the women who died, Christ is life. The message that follows explains what these women want you to know—how you can find new life in Jesus Christ. They had committed themselves to sharing this message in life or in death.

Just as there are physical laws that govern the physical universe, so are there spiritual laws which govern your relationship with God.

LAW ONE

GOD LOVES YOU, AND OFFERS A WONDERFUL PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

(References should be read in context from the Bible wherever possible.)

God's Love

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

God's Plan

(Christ speaking) "I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly" (that it might be full and meaningful) (John 10:10).

Why is it that most people are not experiencing the abundant life?

Because. . .

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Trying to figure out what the home buying public wants at any given time is a problem that has always perplexed house builders and community planners.

No matter how many studies are made, the people who buy the houses continue to confound those who interpret the results. Just when it appears that a trend has been established on which to base future plans, the public moves in another direction or, at the very least, exhibits an indifference which hardly fosters the anticipated housing recovery.

As land and building costs have continued to increase, the price of a new, one-family house has gone up every year. Commerce Department figures released recently show that, in the second quarter of this year, the average price of such a house was $48,000. Prospective purchasers have been saying for a long time that they are being priced out of the market.

Legislators have taken some steps to speed the sales of houses. Last year, it was decided to accelerate the movement of new unsold houses. A 5 per cent tax credit was given to the buyer of a new house or one started in the early part of the year, even though it need not be occupied until January 1, 1977. Provided certain rather easy conditions were met, the tax credits applied to regular houses, condominiums, cooperatives and mobiles. It spurred sales, but only to a degree and not nearly as much as expected.

There were changes in the laws governing closing costs, the idea being to make such costs less mysterious to the buyer. But the house purchaser found that knowing ahead of time what the closing costs would be did not make them less. And everyone concerned — sellers, buyers, lenders and real estate brokers — agreed that the extra paper work delayed the completion of sales. New amendments to these regulations have gone into effect in an attempt to cut some of the red tape.

For more than a year now, builders have attempted to bring down the costs of new houses by the elimination of so-called frills. The term so-called is used deliberately, because what is a frill to one family is considered a necessity by another. Include in that category an extra bathroom, since surveys show that many people say they don't need an extra bathroom if it adds to the cost of a house, which it certainly does.

In reality, most persons talk one way and act another, not exactly a new conclusion in or out of real estate. The latest figures by the Bureau of Census and the Department of Housing and Urban Development make it plain that as many families as ever want such things as extra bathrooms, central air conditioning, fireplaces, etc. When such items are offered as optionals at an extra cost in many housing developments, more persons elect for them than pass them by.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Trying to figure out what the home buying public wants at any given time is a problem that has always perplexed house builders and community planners.

No matter how many studies are made, the people who buy the houses continue to confound those who interpret the results. Just when it appears that a trend has been established on which to base future plans, the public moves in another direction or, at the very least, exhibits an indifference which hardly fosters the anticipated housing recovery.

As land and building costs have continued to increase, the price of a new, one-family house has gone up every year. Commerce Department figures released recently show that, in the second quarter of this year, the average price of such a house was $48,000. Prospective purchasers have been saying for a long time that they are being priced out of the market.

Legislators have taken some steps to speed the sales of houses. Last year, it was decided to accelerate the movement of new unsold houses. A 5 per cent tax credit was given to the buyer of a new house or one started in the early part of the year, even though it need not be occupied until January 1, 1977. Provided certain rather easy conditions were met, the tax credits applied to regular houses, condominiums, cooperatives and mobiles. It spurred sales, but only to a degree and not nearly as much as expected.

There were changes in the laws governing closing costs, the idea being to make such costs less mysterious to the buyer. But the house purchaser found that knowing ahead of time what the closing costs would be did not make them less. And everyone concerned — sellers, buyers, lenders and real estate brokers — agreed that the extra paper work delayed the completion of sales. New amendments to these regulations have gone into effect in an attempt to cut some of the red tape.

For more than a year now, builders have attempted to bring down the costs of new houses by the elimination of so-called frills. The term so-called is used deliberately, because what is a frill to one family is considered a necessity by another. Include in that category an extra bathroom, since surveys show that many people say they don't need an extra bathroom if it adds to the cost of a house, which it certainly does.

In reality, most persons talk one way and act another, not exactly a new conclusion in or out of real estate. The latest figures by the Bureau of Census and the Department of Housing and Urban Development make it plain that as many families as ever want such things as extra bathrooms, central air conditioning, fireplaces, etc. When such items are offered as optionals at an extra cost in many housing developments, more persons elect for them than pass them by.

Burial will follow in New Harmony Cemetery at Cerro Gordo.

Black rule plans to be presented

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Zambia today, and his aides claimed he has advanced prospects of black rule for Rhodesia and South-West Africa.

Kissinger went to Lusaka to tell President Kenneth Kaunda about his weekend talks in Pretoria with Prime Ministers Ian D. Smith of Rhodesia and John Vorster of South AFrica.

Smith and several of his cabinet ministers who accompanied him to the South African capital flew home to Salisbury, on Sunday after two four-hour sessions with Kissinger. Smith was to present joint U.S.-British proposals for black rule to his cabinet and to the caucus of his ruling Rhodesian Front party.

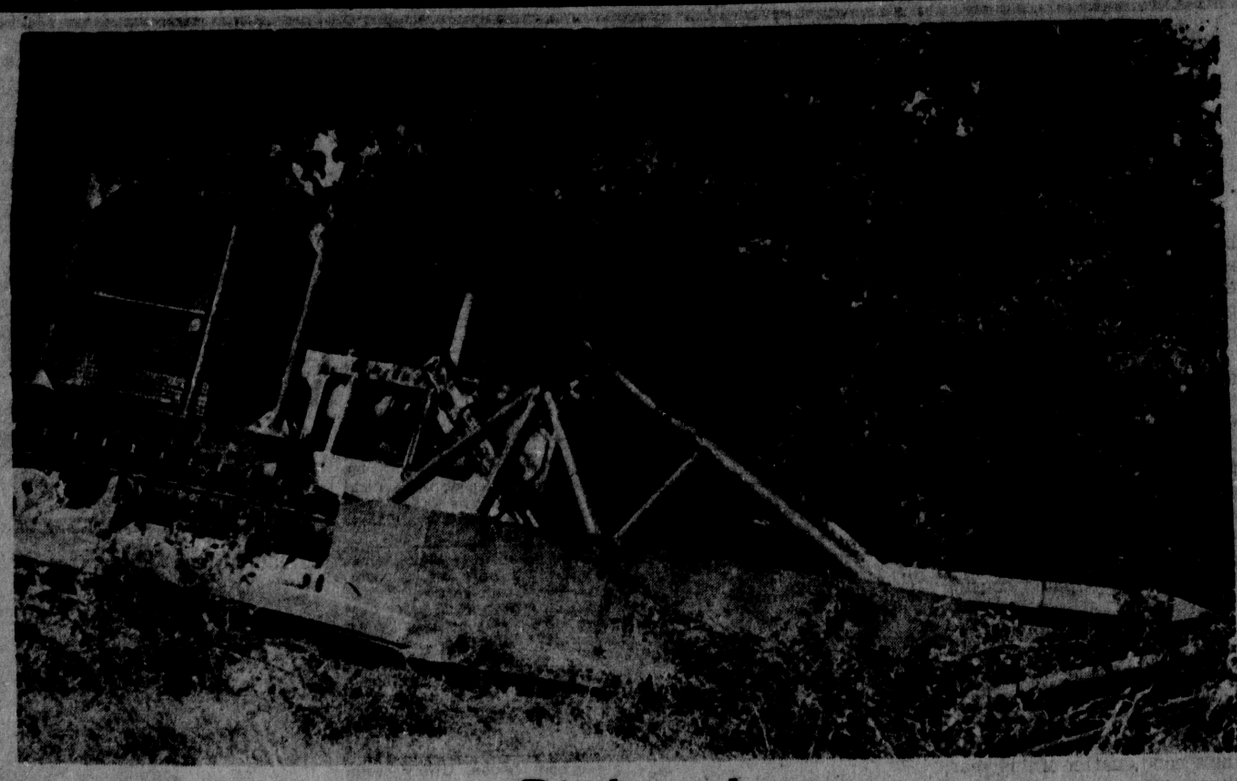
"I'm satisfied that Mr. Smith and his very close collaborators will report favorably to their other colleagues," Kissinger said. Twice before, Smith's supporters have repudiated accords on Rhodesia's constitutional future that he initialed with the British government.

The U.S.-British plan calls for a commitment to black majority rule within two years, a constitutional conference in Geneva, broadening of the Rhodesian cabinet to include black nationalists and a $2-billion fund to compensate whites who leave Rhodesia and finance development of the nation under black rule. The United States, Britain, South Africa and other nations would supply the money.

Observers in Salisbury expressed belief that both Smith and Kissinger made major concessions. They believed that Smith for the first time accepted the principle of black majority rule. But they also believed that Kissinger had agreed to a transitional period of longer than two years.

A spokesman for Kissinger reported that he and Vorster made "considerable progress" in their discussions of the future of South-West Africa, or Namibia, as it is called by the United Nations.

South African sources said Vorster agreed in principle for the South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO, to join negotiations to arrange independence and black rule for the territory which South Africa has controlled since World War I.



Ditch work

Cleaning work on a three-mile stretch of ditch in northern Stoddard County near Advance started last week, despite strong opposition from several landowners. The landowners at the north end of the ditch feel the work needs to be done, but most of those on the south end feel it is not worth the cost. The County Court earlier this year agreed to do the work after it appeared that all landowners were in agreement that the work should be done. The court is expected to decide Thursday whether or not to take land in the south part of the area out of the drainage district.

Carter's tax reform ideas criticized by Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter's views on tax reform are being assailed by Republicans and loom as a potential centerpiece of his debate Thursday with President Ford.

Carter discussed tax revisions in an interview wjth The Associated Press released Saturday. In a fresh statement of his intent Sunday, he said the purpose of tax reform should be to shift the burden to those with higher incomes and away from poor-and middle-income families.

Republicans, particularly vice presidential nominee Sen. Robert Dole, immediately asserted that Carter means to increase taxes for anyone making more than $12,000 to $14,000 a year, and termed his original statement a major campaign blunder.

But Carter replied Sunday that "the interpretation of what I said by Mr. Ford and Mr. Dole and the Republican spokesmen is certainly completely distorted." He said he had no quarrel with the AP accounts of his statements. They "are very accurate," he said.

Waving a four-volume copy of the U.S. tax code, Carter promised a St. Louis audience that as president "I'm not going to add a tax burden on working families and the medium income categories, $15,000 income."

The tax controversy arose from Carter's responses, as follows, after he was asked at the AP interview what he meant when he said he would shift the tax burden.

A. That means people who have a higher income would pay more taxes at a certain level.

Q. In dollar figures, what are you thinking of as higher?

A. I don't know. I would take the mean or median level of income and anything above that would be higher and anything below that would be lower.

Q. The median family income today is somewhere around $12,000. Somebody earning $15,000 a year is not what people commonly think of as rich....

A. I understand. I can't answer that question because I haven't gone into it. I don't know how to write the tax code now in specific terms. It is just not possible to do that on a campaign trail....

Carter said the aim of his program would not be to either raise or lower government revenues over-all.

"The over-all effect would be to shift a substantial increase towards those who have the higher incomes and reduce the income (tax) on the lower and middle income taxpayers," Carter said.

In a partial transcript of the interview, transmitted on AP wires Saturday for use in Monday afternoon newspapers, the words "and middle income" were dropped because of a transcribing error. After the controversy arose, a tape recording of the interview was reviewed and the omission was corrected.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen and William Greener, chief spokesman for Ford's campaign committee, said the Republican attack on Carter's tax comments was not affected by the transcript correction.

Dole interpreted Carter's statements as meaning the Democratic nominee wants to "raise taxes for half the American families."

After Carter accused Dole and other Republicans of distortion, Dole responded Sunday night in Florida with a denial, contending Carter is "on the hook now and he's going to try to wiggle off."

Dole said Carter "should drop out of the race" if he does not have a better understanding of the American economic system than Dole claimed Carter has demonstrated.

The Kansas senator told The AP in an interview that Carter has "got a real blunder on his hands and it's probably going to be the major topic in the first debate, or should be the major topic." Domestic and economic issues are scheduled as the subjects of the first debate.

In any event, Congress must approve tax law changes.

Carter said in his interview with AP senior editors and reporters that he'll use his debate with Ford Thursday to try to convince American voters that he's not a radical.

Carter said he thinks the debate will "help to alleviate a lot of the concerns about me" by showing "that I am not a radical, that I am not completely ignorant about defense or foreign affairs, that I am a substantial person."

The Democratic presidential candidate said, however, that "unless President Ford or I make a serious mistake," the debates are likely to simply solidify candidate support and strengthen the commitments of voters who now are just leaners.

"President Ford is much better known than I am. He is much more predictable than I am. And I think the juxtaposition of myself with him in the debates will accrue to my own benefit if I do a good job in the debates — which I intend to do."

He said the first of the three scheduled debates should blunt the concern of some voters that he is deliberately fuzzy on issues. Forty-nine per cent of respondents to a recent Louis Harris poll agreed with the proposition that Carter "has ducked taking stands on issues to avoid offending anybody, and that is wrong." Only 34 per cent disagreed; the rest didn't answer.

Kansas City's Foreign Trade Zone.

During the evening, Al Sikes, director of the Missouri Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation, and Licensing (CARL), outlined plans for the state's overseas business development office to open later this fall. The international business program operates within the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, coordinators of the tour activity.

The business executives visited the five states of the Ozarks Regional Commission, including Louisiana, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Missouri to survey opportunities for the location of new or expanded manufacturing facilities or joint-venture investments. Missouri's overseas office will promote the state as an ideal location for such international business activity as part of the state's overall economic development program.

Area Chamber of Commerce representatives attending the meeting with foreign business executives included: Bill Wellborn, of Sikeston executive director; Allen Blanton, of Sikeston with the Sikeston Industrial Development Corp.; Charles Clodfelter of Dexter, with the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission in Malden and Jerry Halsell of Blytheville, Ark. with Arkansas- Missouri Power Co.

Another distortion the opposition has defrauded the public with, Norton said, is mandatory garbage collection.

He admits there is mandatory garbage collection here, but that it is mandatory because state law and the Environmental Protection Agency require it, not the local government.

"It is not a matter of choice," Norton said, claiming the opposition had made a "deliberate and intentional misstatement of fact."

Opposition criticism of the police department also was challenged by Norton.

In 1960, he said 15 officers were on duty at all times, but they were working 60 hours each.

The department now has 31 officers, which seems like a lot, Norton said, but when officers, such as dispatchers and detectives, are taken off the street, you only have eight officers working on each of three shifts to cover a large area.

"The police department is so efficiently run, it is amazing how quickly they are able to get to the scene or give emergency service," he said.

The city manager form of government has been accused of losing jobs in the area, as several industries closed their factories in the area recently, but Norton stressed that it was due to economics, not city policy.

The city tried to keep the industries hereby offering incentives, but the companies were not interested, he said.

Even so, Norton asserted that the situation is not that bad since, even though there are fewer jobs in industry, more jobs are available in stores and other businesses, pointing out that there are a lot of stores here now that did not exist 15 years ago.

With these added employment opportunities, Norton said more people are working here than ever before.

Lehr tells of plan to resign

KANSAS CITY (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr, once mentioned as a likely Democratic candidate for governor and more recently for the U.S. Senate, says he plans to resign and remain out of elective politics.

Lehr made the surprise announcement at a mid-day news conference in Kansas City Saturday. He said the date of his resignation would depend on an attorney general's ruling on how his post would be filled.

Lehr, 39, cited compelling personal family reasons for his decision and noted that his 16-year-old son is a victim of muscular dystrophy. He said his own preoccupation with politics had kept him from spending the time he needed to devote to the boy and had thrown an intolerable burden on his wife, Barbara, who was at the news conference with him.

Lehr, who was severely crippled by polio while he was in high school, said he "saw the light" Friday night after his son had difficulty breathing after attending a baseball game in Kansas City.

Lehr, who has been auditor for 20 months, said the possibility of resigning had been considered as long ago as July but had not come under active consideration until three or four weeks ago. He said the decision was not made until 4:30 or 5:00 Saturday morning.

"This is a very sad decision, a very necessary decision but also a very relieving one," Lehr told newsmen. "I realize this ends my career in elective politics."

He apologized for letting down those who elected him auditor, to Democratic candidates he had promised to help in the upcoming election and to his staff members. "No man has ever been treated better. No man has ever enjoyed politics more than I have," he said.

Some aides questioned whether Lehr, who has been in government since 1963 when he was a Jackson County auditor, would remain out of politics indefinitely. But Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., who attended the news conference with the auditor, said the resignation probably precluded further election bids by Lehr.

"Politics tends to consume the politician," Eagleton said. "It was absolutely necessary that he do his. But, having resigned from elective office, he fully appreciates that he has closed the door on that opportunity again."

Lehr asked that the Missouri attorney general's office determine whether the auditor's post could be declared open so that a Republican and a Democrat could run for the office in November. If that occurs, he said, he would resign as soon as possible.

Bond's veto still stands

JEFFERSON CITY Everyone was surprised at the extent of Gov. Christopher Bond's success at stopping a legislative attempt to override his veto of revisions in the state's campaign finance regulation law.

Even Republican legislative leaders thought Democrats would be able to muster about 90 votes, although that would still be short of the 109 votes needed to override a veto.

But only 40 votes were found for overriding Bond's veto when the House acted on it, and many capitol observers feel the combination of election pressure and lack of any organized Democratic attempt to override was the reason.

House Speaker Richard Rabbitt, for example, chose not to work for the override and even voted to sustain Bond's veto. So did Speaker Pro Tem Richard DeCoster and Majority Whip Hayden Morgan.

That bill, which would have raised the limits at which candidates have to report sources of personal income while exempting candidates spending less than $500 from reporting income at all, was originally passed by the House with 109 votes.

The Senate voted to override Bond with only the exact number of votes they needed —23.

Bond is promising he will recommend a bill for this coming January which will exempt candidates who spend or receive less than $500 in their campaigns and who would be paid less than $1,500 for that position. That bill will not raise the limits on reporting personal income and finances, however.

Swedish socialists halted by 3-party coalition

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A coalition of three moderate parties ended 44 years of Socialist government in Sweden today with a national election victory whose greatest consequence may be to set back leftist parties elsewhere in Western Europe.

With only 50,000 to 60,000 postal ballots still to be counted, the moderates had 50.7 per cent of the 5,359,921 ballots counted and 180 seats in the 349-seat parliament. The Social Democrats and their Communist supporters had 47.6 per cent and 169 seats. The new prime minister will be Thorbjorn Falldin, 50-year-old head of the Center party.

Although the victorious coalition is likely to improve relations with the United States after the seven prickly years in which Olof Palme was prime minister, all three parties are committed to Sweden's traditional neutral foreign policy and to the welfare state that Palme's Social Democratic party built up.

The effect of the election was likely to be felt most keenly in West Germany, where the Social Democratic party led by Helmut Schmidt is engaged in a hard fight to stay in power in the national election Oct. 3.

The Swedish Social Democrats are to the left of the German Socialist party, and the West German Christian Democrats are much more conservative than the Swedish moderates. But the Swedish results were expected to give momentum to the Christian Democrats.

In France, where Sweden has often been held up as a model, the ouster of the Swedish Socialists is likely to have an adverse effect on the alliance of French Socialists and Communists in municipal elections next year and parliamentary elections in 1978.

In Britain, British officials here say, the Swedish results will slow down any push by the Trades Union Congress for more nationalization of industry. One of the key elections issues here was a plan that would have turned private businesses into virtually nationalized companies managed by the Socialist-dominated TUC.

The historic Socialist defeat came after a quiet, almost polite election campaign, devoid of personal attacks or much color.

He was born on May 10, 1885 in Cerro Gordo, Tenn., to the late George W. and Angie Northcutt Blackwelder.

On Aug. 4, 1907 in Cerro Gordo, he married Viola Southen, who survives.

Also surviving are: one son, Wilson Blackwelder of Sikeston; four daughters, Ruby Hays of Sikeston, Opal Oakley of Cerro Gordo, Mary Woolfolk of Memphis, Tenn., and Easter Bowling of Hammond, Ind.; one brother, Elgin Blackwelder of Savannah, Tenn., and 12 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Friends may call after 11 a.m. Tuesday at Nunnelee Funeral Chapel, where services are scheduled at 10 a.m. Wednesday with Manly Luscombe, minister of Shady Acres Church of Christ, officiating.

Burial will follow in New Harmony Cemetery at Cerro Gordo.

Black rule plans to be presented

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Zambia today, and his aides claimed he has advanced prospects of black rule for Rhodesia and South-West Africa.

Kissinger went to Lusaka to tell President Kenneth Kaunda about his weekend talks in Pretoria with Prime Ministers Ian D. Smith of Rhodesia and John Vorster of South AFrica.

Smith and several of his cabinet ministers who accompanied him to the South African capital flew home to Salisbury on Sunday after two four-hour sessions with Kissinger. Smith was to present joint U.S.-British proposals for black rule to his cabinet and to the caucus of his ruling Rhodesian Front party.

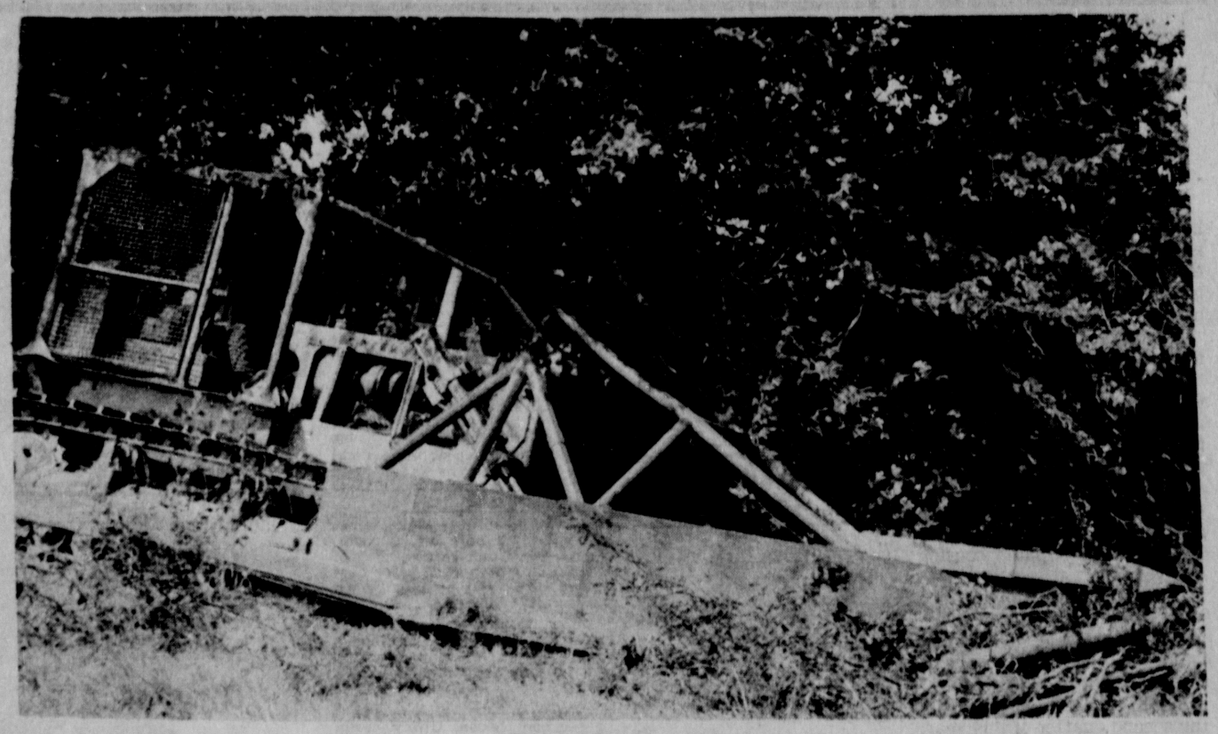
"I'm satisfied that Mr. Smith and his very close collaborators will report favorably to their other colleagues," Kissinger said. Twice before, Smith's supporters have repudiated accords on Rhodesia's constitutional future that he initialed with the British government.

The U.S.-British plan calls for a commitment to black majority rule within two years, a constitutional conference in Geneva, broadening of the Rhodesian cabinet to include black nationalists and a $2-billion fund to compensate whites who leave Rhodesia and finance development of the nation under black rule. The United States, Britain, South Africa and other nations would supply the money.

Observers in Salisbury expressed belief that both Smith and Kissinger made major concessions. They believed that Smith for the first time accepted the principle of black majority rule. But they also believed that Kissinger had agreed to a transitional period of longer than two years.

A spokesman for Kissinger reported that he and Vorster made "considerable progress" in their discussions of the future of South-West Africa, or Namibia, as it is called by the United Nations.

South African sources said Vorster agreed in principle for the South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO, to join negotiations to arrange independence and black rule for the territory which South Africa has controlled since World War I.



Ditch work

Cleaning work on a three-mile stretch of ditch in northern Stoddard County near Advance started last week, despite strong opposition from several landowners. The landowners at the north end of the ditch feel the work needs to be done, but most of those on the south end feel it is not worth the cost. The County Court earlier this year agreed to do the work after it appeared that all landowners were in agreement that the work should be done. The court is expected to decide Thursday whether or not to take land in the south part of the area out of the drainage district.

Carter's tax reform ideas criticized by Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter's views on tax reform are being assailed by Republicans and loom as a potential centerpiece of his debate Thursday with President Ford.

Carter discussed tax revisions in an interview with The Associated Press released Saturday. In a fresh statement of his intent Sunday, he said the purpose of tax reform should be to shift the burden to those with higher incomes and away from poor-and middle-income families.

Republicans, particularly vice presidential nominee Sen. Robert Dole, immediately asserted that Carter means to increase taxes for anyone making more than $12,000 to $14,000 a year, and termed his original statement a major campaign blunder.

But Carter replied Sunday that "the interpretation of what I said by Mr. Ford and Mr. Dole and the Republican spokesmen is certainly completely distorted." He said he had no quarrel with the AP accounts of his statements. They "are very accurate," he said.

Waving a four-volume copy of the U.S. tax code, Carter promised a St. Louis audience that as president "I'm not going to add a tax burden on working families and the medium income categories, $15,000 income."

The tax controversy arose from Carter's responses, as follows, after he was asked at the AP interview what he meant when he said he would shift the tax burden.

A. That means people who have a higher income would pay more taxes at a certain level.

Q. In dollar figures, what are you thinking of as higher?

A. I don't know. I would take the mean or median level of income and anything above that would be higher and anything below that would be lower.

Q. The median family income today is somewhere around $12,000. Somebody earning $15,000 a year is not what people commonly think of as rich....

A. I understand. I can't answer that question because I haven't gone into it. I don't know how to write the tax code now in specific terms. It is just not possible to do that on a campaign trail....

Carter said the aim of his program would not be to either raise or lower government revenues over-all.

"The over-all effect would be to shift a substantial increase towards those who have the higher incomes and reduce the income (tax) on the lower and middle income taxpayers," Carter said.

In a partial transcript of the interview, transmitted on AP wires Saturday for use in Monday afternoon newspapers, the words "and middle income" were dropped because of a transcribing error. After the controversy arose, a tape recording of the interview was reviewed and the omission was corrected.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen and William Greener, chief spokesman for Ford's campaign committee, said the Republican attack on Carter's tax comments was not affected by the transcript correction.

Dole interpreted Carter's statements as meaning the Democratic nominee wants to "raise taxes for half the American families."

After Carter accused Dole and other Republicans of distortion, Dole responded Sunday night in Florida with a denial, contending Carter is "on the hook now and he's going to try to wiggle off."

Dole said Carter "should drop out of the race" if he does not have a better understanding of the American economic system than Dole claimed Carter has demonstrated.

The Kansas senator told The AP in an interview that Carter has "got a real blunder on his hands and it's probably going to be the major topic in the first debate, or should be the major topic." Domestic and economic issues are scheduled as the subjects of the first debate.

In any event, Congress must approve tax law changes.

Carter said in his interview with AP senior editors and reporters that he'll use his debate with Ford Thursday to try to convince American voters that he's not a radical.

Carter said he thinks the debate will "help to alleviate a lot of the concerns about me" by showing "that I am not a radical, that I am not completely ignorant about defense or foreign affairs, that I am a substantial person."

The Democratic presidential candidate said, however, that "unless President Ford or I make a serious mistake," the debates are likely to simply solidify candidate support and strengthen the commitments of voters who now are just leaners.

"President Ford is much better known than I am. He is much more predictable than I am. And I think the juxtaposition of myself with him in the debates will accrue to my own benefit if I do a good job in the debates — which I intend to do."

He said the first of the three scheduled debates should blunt the concern of some voters that he is deliberately fuzzy on issues. Forty-nine per cent of respondents to a recent Louis Harris poll agreed with the proposition that Carter "has ducked taking stands on issues to avoid offending anybody, and that is wrong." Only 34 per cent disagreed; the rest didn't answer.

Lehr tells of plan to resign

KANSAS CITY (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr, once mentioned as a likely Democratic candidate for governor and more recently for the U.S. Senate, says he plans to resign and remain out of elective politics.

Lehr made the surprise announcement at a mid-day news conference in Kansas City Saturday. He said the date of his resignation would depend on an attorney general's ruling on how his post would be filled.

Lehr, 39, cited compelling personal family reasons for his decision and noted that his 16-year-old son is a victim of muscular dystrophy. He said his own preoccupation with politics had kept him from spending the time he needed to devote to the boy and had thrown an intolerable burden on his wife, Barbara, who was at the news conference with him.

Lehr, who was severely crippled by polio while he was in high school, said he "saw the light" Friday night after his son had difficulty breathing after attending a baseball game in Kansas City.

Lehr, who has been auditor for 20 months, said the possibility of resigning had been considered as long ago as July but had not come under active consideration until three or four weeks ago. He said the decision was not made until 4:30 or 5:00 Saturday morning.

"This is a very sad decision, a very necessary decision but also a very relieving one," Lehr told newsmen. "I realize this ends my career in elective politics."

He apologized for letting down those who elected him auditor, to Democratic candidates he had promised to help in the upcoming election and to his staff members. "No man has ever been treated better. No man has ever enjoyed politics more than I have," he said.

Some aides questioned whether Lehr, who has been in government since 1963 when he was a Jackson County auditor, would remain out of politics indefinitely. But Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., who attended the news conference with the auditor, said the resignation probably precluded further election bids by Lehr.

"Politics tends to consume the politician," Eagleton said. "It was absolutely necessary that he do his. But, having resigned from elective office, he fully appreciates that he has closed the door on that opportunity again."

Lehr asked that the Missouri attorney general's office determine whether the auditor's post could be declared open so that a Republican and a Democrat could run for the office in November. If that occurs, he said, he would resign as soon as possible.

Kansas City's Foreign Trade Zone.

During the evening, Al Sikes, director of the Missouri Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation, and Licensing (CARL), outlined plans for the state's overseas business development office to open later this fall. The international business program operates within the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, coordinators of the tour activity.

The business executives visited the five states of the Ozarks Regional Commission, including Louisiana, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Missouri to survey opportunities for the location of new or expanded manufacturing facilities or joint-venture investments. Missouri's overseas office will promote the state as an ideal location for such international business activity as part of the state's overall economic development program.

Area Chamber of Commerce representatives attending the meeting with foreign business executives included: Bill Weilborn, of Sikeston executive director; Allen Blanton, of Sikeston with the Sikeston Industrial Development Corp.; Charles Clodfelter of Dexter, with the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission in Malden and Jerry Halsell of Blytheville, Ark. with Arkansas- Missouri Power Co.

other areas.

Another distortion the opposition has defrauded the public with, Norton said, is mandatory garbage collection.

He admits there is mandatory garbage collection here, but that it is mandatory because state law and the Environmental Protection Agency require it, not the local government.

"It is not a matter of choice," Norton said, claiming the opposition had made a "deliberate and intentional misstatement of fact."

Opposition criticism of the police department also was challenged by Norton.

In 1960, he said 15 officers were on duty at all times, but they were working 60 hours each.

The department now has 31 officers, which seems like a lot, Norton said, but when officers, such as dispatchers and detectives, are taken off the street, you only have eight officers working on each of three shifts to cover a large area.

"The police department is so efficiently run, it is amazing how quickly they are able to get to the scene or give emergency service," he said.

The city manager form of government has been accused of losing jobs in the area, as several industries closed their factories in the area recently, but Norton stressed that it was due to economics, not city policy.

The city tried to keep the industries hereby offering incentives, but the companies were not interested, he said.

Even so, Norton asserted that the situation is not that bad since, even though there are fewer jobs in industry, more jobs are available in stores and other businesses, pointing out that there are a lot of stores here now that did not exist 15 years ago.

With these added employment opportunities, Norton said more people are working here than ever before.

Bond's veto still stands

JEFFERSON CITY

Everyone was surprised at the extent of Gov. Christopher Bond's success at stopping a legislative attempt to override his veto of revisions in the state's campaign finance regulation law.

Even Republican legislative leaders thought Democrats would be able to muster about 90 votes, although that would still be short of the 109 votes needed to override a veto.

But only 40 votes were found for overriding Bond's veto when the House acted on it, and many capitol observers feel the combination of election pressure and lack of any organized Democratic attempt to override was the reason.

Carnival celebrates cotton harvest

World War II finally came to an end in 1945 spurring a mood of celebration throughout the country. In Sikeston during the fall of 1945 Henry Meldrum post of the American Legion decided to sponsor just such a celebration partially to relieve tension caused by the war.

At that time cotton was known as King Cotton in Southeast Missouri--the number one crop. Harvest of the crop was also a time of celebration and fall was harvest time. Thus, the festival started by the local legion post, was named Cotton Carnival.

The Sikeston Standard reported on Oct. 12, 1945, the day before the first carnival began, "The SeMo Cotton Carnival will be an annual event and its sponsors and the people of Sikeston are determined that this, their first effort, will prove a convincing demonstration of the kind of hospitality that the people of the Cotton Country are entitled to receive. The carnival is a celebration of, by and for folks of the SeMo Cotton Country."

History has proven that statement correct. As the Cotton Carnival today begins its 31st year, the people of Sikeston will once again extend their hospitality to those of surrounding towns.

Thirty-one years ago the celebration was only a one-day event. But that one day, Oct. 13, a Saturday, was full of entertainment, fun and celebration for everyone.

The amusement center was in Malone Park where there were three rides, bingo stands, games of all kinds and plenty of good things to eat. There was no professional carnival on the grounds that first year, but it didn't seem to matter. People were ready to celebrate and could make their own fun.

General chairman was Charles Butler, who also served as mayor of Sikeston.

One highlight of the day was the "mammoth parade".

Benton High School won the $25 first prize for the best decorated float.

Cotton Carnival queen contestants were judged from a reviewing platform in the park, however announcement of the winner was not made until later in the afternoon. From nine contestants, Dot Matthews of Sikeston was named queen with Betty Sizemore and Marilyn Joffie as attendants.

The afternoon program included drawings for war bonds, band concerts, pie eating contests, games and free shows.

An estimated 8,000 persons were guests of Sikeston and the American Legion post for that first annual event.

Because of the great success of the first year, legionnaires in 1946 decided to have a two-day festival. Again the event was successful and the Sikeston Standard reported, "the idea of exploiting the Bootheel Cotton

The carnival is a celebration of, by and for folks of the SeMo Cotton Country."

History has proven that statement correct. As the Cotton Carnival today begins its 31st year, the people of Sikeston will once again extend their hospitality to those of surrounding towns.

Thirty-one years ago the celebration was only a one-day event. But that one day, Oct. 13, a Saturday, was full of entertainment, fun and celebration for everyone.

The amusement center was in Malone Park where there were three rides, bingo stands, games of all kinds and plenty of good things to eat. There was no professional carnival on the grounds that first year, but it didn't seem to matter. People were ready to celebrate and could make their own fun.

General chairman was Charles Butler, who also served as mayor of Sikeston.

One highlight of the day was the "mammoth parade".

Benton High School won the $25 first prize for the best decorated float.

Cotton Carnival queen contestants were judged from a reviewing platform in the park, however announcement of the winner was not made until later in the afternoon. From nine contestants, Dot Matthews of Sikeston was named queen with Betty Sizemore and Marilyn Joffie as attendants.

The afternoon program included drawings for war bonds, band concerts, pie eating contests, games and free shows.

An estimated 8,000 persons were guests of Sikeston and the American Legion post for that first annual event.

Because of the great success of the first year, legionnaires in 1946 decided to have a two-day festival. Again the event was successful and the Sikeston Standard reported, "the idea of exploiting the Bootheel Cotton Country has taken hold in every section of the area,"

A large merchant's exhibition tent and bingo tent highlighted festivities of the third annual Cotton Carnival Sept. 26-27, 1947.

In 1948, the Cotton Carnival was increased by another day, making it a three-day event. Excitement was high as Thomas Taylor of Dexter won the drawing for a 1949 Tudor Ford Sedan.

The Miss Sikeston contest was added to carnival festivities in 1950 and the Cotton Carnival was moved to a new location in Legion and Railroad Parks. Willia Dean Richards was crowned the first Miss Sikeston during the sixth annual event Sept. 29-30, 1950.

The carnival was already known throughout the state, but in 1950, it received national recognition from the Mutual Broadcasting Network.

Still another beauty contest was added to Cotton Carnival activities in 1951 as 48 blond-haired youngsters vied for the crowns of King and Queen Cotton top.

Marilyn Ables and Larry Powell were named the winners.

Crowd estimates reached 25,000 at the eighth annual carnival in 1952, and again in 1953. It was reported that the 1953 carnival parade was so big that when the first elements of the parade were disbanding some units were still moving away from the starting point. More than 50 floats and decorated cars were in the parade.

In 1954, the Missouri Maid of Cotton Contest was held in Sikeston during the 10th annual American Legion Cotton Carnival. Aletha Pitts of Sikeston received the title from 13 contestants.

Rain plagued the 11th annual event, although it was still recorded as one of the most successful in the history.

In 1956, several popular features of previous years were missing because of crack-downs by the state on all types of games of chance. But even with these restrictions, the three-day event took its place in record books as another smashing success.

The 13th annual Cotton Carnival featured the nationally famous band and crack honor guard of the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky.

Melting Boots

In 1768 a French scientist presented Frederick the Great with a rare pair of rubber riding boots. Unfortunately, vulcanization — the process of heating rubber with sulphur to make it permanently firm and uniformly elastic — had not yet been discovered by Charles Goodyear, and Frederick's boots stuck to his feet in hot weather and cracked in cold.

Cotton Rags Sought After In Revolution

Cotton and linen rags brought premium prices during the Revolutionary War because they were needed to make paper which had previously been imported from England.

So great was the need that one newspaper, the Massachusetts Spy, called on American housewives in 1778 to serve their country by saving for the local paper mill cotton and linen rags "be they ever so small." In New York and Philadelphia prizes were offered those who collected the largest quantities of clean white rags.

The Army needed cartridge paper for ammunition, writing paper for official orders, and printing paper for propaganda. Newspapers, too, were hardpressed for paper. More than half of the newspapers published during the Revolutionary War were forced out of business chiefly because of the paper shortage, reports the National Cotton Council.

The general shortage continued for a time after the war, as demand soared for paper to be used in printing newspapers, books, and magazines. Old rags—yellowed and deteriorating—were pressed into use for paper-making, and this in turn required the use of strong bleaches to make acceptable though poor quality paper.

With the invention of the cotton gin, a marked improvement came about in both quantity and quality of paper in the first decades of the 19th Century. It made available new rags from cotton — the purest natural cellulose fiber — and ended the need for the harsh bleaches which had been used on the old discolored rags.

Paper manufactured from cotton between 1800 and 1850 was far more durable than the wood-pulp paper that came into use at the end of the 19th Century.

An example of this was pointed out by the librarian of Congress in 1898 when he expressed concern that many collections of historical records would become useless because of the deterioration and disintegration of paper.

By way of demonstration, he exhibited a copy of the Chambersburg (Pa.) weekly which was published on rag paper in the last decade of the 18th Century. It was still in good condition, while a copy of the Chicago Tribune — published 80 years later and of far more historical value—was not.

Picker Patents Profuse

Over the last century, more than 1,800 patents have been issued for mechanical cotton harvesters.

Cotton Rags Sought After In Revolution

Cotton and linen rags brought premium prices during the Revolutionary War because they were needed to make paper which had previously been imported from England.

So great was the need that one newspaper, the Massachusetts Spy, called on American housewives in 1778 to serve their country by saving for the local paper mill cotton and linen rags "be they ever so small." In New York and Philadelphia prizes were offered those who collected the largest quantities of clean white rags.

The Army needed cartridge paper for ammunition, writing paper for official orders, and printing paper for propaganda. Newspapers, too, were hard-pressed for paper. More than half of the newspapers published during the Revolutionary War were forced out of business chiefly because of the paper shortage, reports the National Cotton Council.

The general shortage continued for a time after the war, as demand soared for paper to be used in printing newspapers, books, and magazines. Old rags—yellowed and deteriorating—were pressed into use for paper-making, and this in turn required the use of strong bleaches to make acceptable though poor quality paper.

With the invention of the cotton gin, a marked improvement came about in both quantity and quality of paper in the first decades of the 19th Century. It made available new rags from cotton — the purest natural cellulose fiber — and ended the need for the harsh bleaches which had been used on the old discolored rags.

Paper manufactured from cotton between 1800 and 1850 was far more durable than the wood-pulp paper that came into use at the end of the 19th Century.

An example of this was pointed out by the librarian of Congress in 1898 when he expressed concern that many collections of historical records would become useless because of the deterioration and disintegration of paper.

By way of demonstration, he exhibited a copy of the Chambersburg (Pa.) weekly which was published on rag paper in the last decade of the 18th Century. It was still in good condition, while a copy of the Chicago Tribune — published 80 years later and of far more historical value—was not.

Picker Patents Profuse

Over the last century, more than 1,800 patents have been issued for mechanical cotton harvesters.

TORNADO STUDY

CHICAGO (AP) — The incidence of tornado activity in the Chicago area is greatest between the hours of 3 and 7 p.m., during the months of April, May and June, according to a study done by University of Chicago meteorologists.

The final outcome of the project is a map that traces the paths of all tornadoes in the area for the past 100 years. University meteorologist Theodore Fujita researched the subject through historical records and the records of the Chicago office of the National Weather Service.

Arkansas Post Cotton May Have Preceded 1776

The exact date of cotton's first cultivation in Arkansas is one of the puzzles of history, but there are indications that the crop was being grown there some 30 years before the Declaration of Independence.

In 1746, Marquis de Vaudreuil — governor of French Louisiana — informed France that some cotton had arrived in New Orleans from "the Illinois." This was the name given at that time to the region above the mouth of the Yazoo River, points out the National Cotton Council, and some historians believe the cotton came from the settlement at the Arkansas Post.

The outpost, which was Arkansas' first permanent white settlement, had been established at the junction of the Arkansas and Mississippi rivers by Henri de Tonti, LaSalle's lieutenant, in 1683 — the same year William Penn was founding the city of Philadelphia.

Col. Frederick Notrebe, who had served as a young officer under Napoleon in France, settled at Arkansas Post about 1810 and soon became a wealthy planter, ginner, and merchant.

By the early 1800's, good cotton crops were being grown by frontier familes in the Davidson or Mooney settlement about 35 miles up river. Curran's settlement, populated by all of six families, also was reportedly producing some 1,500 pounds of fine quality cotton.

Other early cotton planters were Lewis Randolph, who cultivated 300 acres during the first year of his settlement between the Little Missouri and Terre Noir rivers, and Jacob Barkman, who came from Kentucky in 1811 and brought Caddo River bottomland into production.

In 1830 Notrebe ran a notice in the Arkansas Gazette that he had just received a fresh supply of dry goods which he would sell for cash or trade for furs, hides, or cotton. Notrebe offered a premium for "cotton in seed delivered at the gin of my clerk, Antoine Baraque, in Jefferson County when received dry, neatly picked, and free from dirt and yellow cotton."

When Washington Irving visited the outpost in 1832 he found Notrebe was the settlement's leading citizen and estimated his wealth at about $50,000.

Arkansas cotton was early recognized as being of superior quality. By 1836 — for the second straight season — it was bringing top prices in New Orleans. Twenty-three bales raised by Francis Vaugine of Jefferson County were sold at 18 cents a pound in the Crescent City, according to one report.
